CRAP GAME AT VERNON ENDS FOOD TICKETS FOR TRANSIENTS

Canadian Press
Vernon, B.C., July 23.—Use of tickets entitling transients to 40 cents' worth of food or meals, as pawns in a crap game, was the deciding factor which resulted in a refusal by R. M. McGusty, government agent at Vernon, to issue any more relief.

CRAP GAME AT VERNON ENDS FOOD TICKETS FOR TRANSIENTS

There was no denial that the system had been abused. One day ninety-eight new men registered for relief. Of these, a majority had but a few days ago left the prairies. Most of them were young and many obviously should have been at home with their parents.

CRAP GAME AT VERNON ENDS FOOD TICKETS FOR TRANSIENTS

Relief payments were issued beginning July 7. At first there were fewer than forty-five. A steady increase was noted, and among the newcomers was a boy of fourteen. The last day, tickets were issued to 289 applicants.

CRAP GAME AT VERNON ENDS FOOD TICKETS FOR TRANSIENTS

The statement has been frequently made by these men that they can get all the food they want, and what they need is money. Merchants were consistently bothered by men who wanted to trade in the orders for possibly half their face value in cash.

LURE OF GOLD HELPS MINING IN DEPRESSION

Minister of Mines Makes Half-yearly Report on Operations in Province

Low Metal Prices Cut Output Value, But More Prospectors Active Than in Years

"Mining in British Columbia has withstood the shock of world depression and extreme low metal prices in a most satisfactory and remarkable manner," said Hon. W. A. McKenzie, Minister of Mines, in issuing to-day his summary and review of the mineral industry of British Columbia for the first six months of this year.

Gross value of mineral production in British Columbia for the six months ended June 30, 1931, is placed at $18,703,267 in the figures and other returns gathered by the minister's technical staff, under Provincial Mineralogist John D. Galloway, in order that accurate information regarding this industry might be available to the public. This production compares with $29,910,672 in the corresponding period of 1930.

GOLD REVIVAL HELPS

"The figures show that for the period under review our mineral industry operated on an output basis of 84 per cent of that recorded in the corresponding half-year period of 1930—when high record quantity production of metals and minerals was made," Mr. McKenzie goes on. "While some falling off has occurred in the development of base metal properties, this has been compensated by the widespread revival in gold-mining and the keen interest in prospecting for placer gold. Attention is particularly directed to the fact that this potential gold properties that have been dormant for years are now being developed and the financing of other projects is being attempted. Prospecting has been well maintained. Unemployment and the lure of gold—again a potent attraction—has resulted in many men going into the hills, with the result that more are so engaged than in the year 1930."

STRUCTURAL MATERIALS HOLD UP
"It is also noteworthy and significant that the value of structural materials is nearly as high in the half year of 1931, just ended, as it was in the first six months of 1930. Building and structural work, therefore, is being carried on practically at a normal rate."

"Coal mining has declined in common with the depression in general industry, but corrective measures, strongly endorsed and assisted by the government, are having beneficial results and, it is hoped, will re-establish the industry and assure its future expansion."

COMMENDS EXECUTIVES

"Leading mining executives are to be commended on the courage, resourcefulness and technical ability displayed, which has enabled our industry to come through a most depressing period with a minimum of hardship to those engaged in mining, and dependent on it for their daily sustenance. I cannot allow the opportunity to pass without paying a tribute also to those who form the rank and file of the industry. They are displaying a sense of responsibility and loyalty which is highly commendable. The enterprise and optimism of the prospector are extremely gratifying."

MORE PROSPECTORS OUT

"One of the most encouraging features of present conditions is the interest displayed in prospecting. There are more men in the field than has been the case for many years, and I am hopeful that the result will be the discovery and opening up of new sources of production, both in respect of lode and placer mining. "With the improvement in world conditions that is now gradually appearing, a steady expansion of our mining industry in the future seems certain."

YALE DISTRICT INTERESTS

Much public interest is centred in the Central District No. 2. The Consolidated Mining and Smelting Company is continuing investigations of the A. and M. group, a gold-copper property in the Yale division, and the Gaird property at the head of Bridge River.

Further evidence of financial stress was found in the cessation of operations at the Planet in the Nicola division and the failure to resume active operations at the property of the B.C. Nickel Mines Limited, in the Yale division," the report says.

PIONEER SATISFACTORY

"On the other hand, the development at the Pioneer on Bridge River continues to be satisfactory. The ore-body has been developed over a length of 1,300 feet on the 900-foot level and plans are being put into execution for doubling the milling capacity. A new three-compartment shaft is under construction and during the progress of this work there is limitation of ore that can be handled. It is not expected that the new equipment will be put into active operation before the spring of next year."

LOHNE ACTIVITIES

"Work has been resumed at the Lohne property, adjoining the Pioneer, by Bralorne Mines Limited, a company which has undertaken to continue development and install a mill as soon as the requisite ore reserve is proved. Development work has been continued on the king vein and a limited amount of diamond drilling has been done with the object of proving the continuation of this vein in depth. The results of this work are inconclusive, but it is understood that the view is held by the engineers of the company that there is a sufficient reserve of ore available from the workings on this vein to warrant the commencement of milling operations and it may be anticipated that further developments will follow."

QUANTITY OUTPUT 84%

The report explains the decrease of $11,207,405, or thirty-seven per cent, is due to lessened output of all metals and minerals, and much lower metal prices. Considering the demoralization of the metal markets and the severity of the world-wide business depression, it is considered satisfactory that British Columbia mining has made such a creditable record in the first half of the current year.

Based on dollar value, production is running at sixty-three per cent of the 1930 rate, the Sullivan again figuring in lead and zinc production. Building activity held the value of structural materials at an almost normal level, but the output of miscellaneous metals and minerals dropped 32.5 per cent.

The Sullivan and Premier mines were the principal sources of silver during the period, the Sullivan again figuring in lead and zinc production. Building activity held the value of structural materials at an almost normal level, but the output of miscellaneous metals and minerals dropped 32.5 per cent.

COAL IN BAD SLUMP

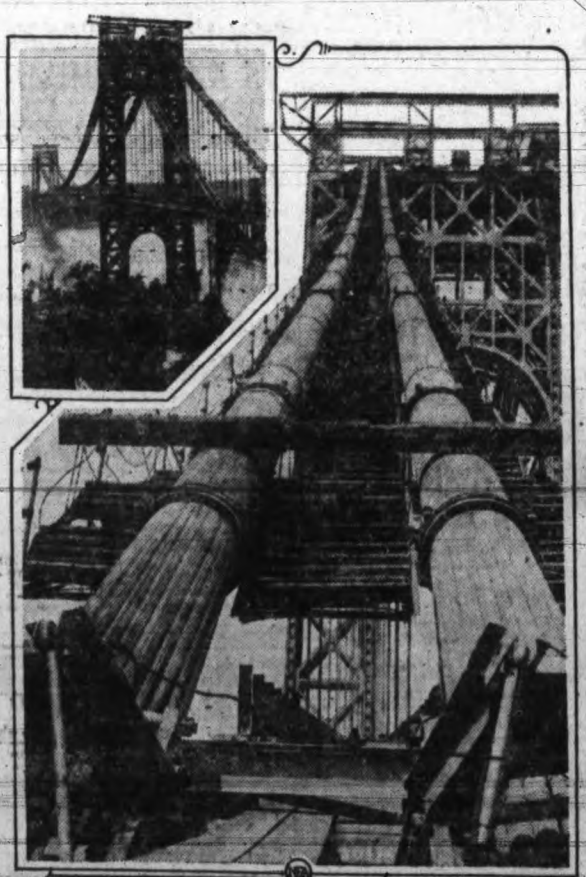

Vancouver Island mines produced 390,214 tons of coal in the six-month period, compared with 491,564 in the same period of 1930; while total British Columbia tonnage was 790,424, as against 960,122 tons a year ago for the half-yearly period.

The big metallurgical plant at Trail increased its operations in the half-yearly period, and employed many men through its subsidiary, the West Kootenay Light & Power Company Limited. The first unit of the new fertilizer plant was brought into production early in the year, and 2,500 tons of triple-superphosphate were made, being marketed mainly in the prairie provinces. Metal production at Trail showed a slight decline in tonnage, and a considerable decline in value, due to lowered metal prices, but the plant is in a good position to go ahead when the demand recovers, it is pointed out.

NEW DEVELOPMENT

On the north end of Vancouver Island considerable development work has been done on the Nahwitti Lake properties by the American Smelting & Refining Company, which have the properties under option. Two shafts and a tunnel were sunk, and stripping carried out on the surface, with silver-laced values found.

On the mainland and islands the principal development was in the gold belt extending northwest across the north end of Sonora Island, containing the following properties: Pine, White Pine, Alexandria and Doratha Morton. Considerable general prospecting has also been carried on in the northern territory, the report concludes.

NEW YORK'S NEW BRIDGE

Towering above the Hudson River—a mammoth link between New Jersey and New York—the George Washington Memorial Bridge is nearing completion. Above is a striking photo of two of the giant cables which support the great structure. Inset is a general view of the span, which is expected to carry more vehicular traffic than any other bridge in the world.

NEW RELIEF PLAN FIXED

B.C. Makes Temporary Start on Scheme for Highway Construction

Transients to Be Moved to Work Camps; Federal Aid Anticipated

Temporary measures to handle transient unemployed in British Columbia, thereby relieving municipalities of some of the burden they are now carrying were decided upon by the unemployment committee of the cabinet at a special meeting yesterday. The scheme will be effective until the province is apprised of the federal government's relief scheme, when complete arrangements will be made.

The main points in the temporary relief scheme are the registration, on oath, of all persons in need within the province, and the grouping of transients in camps near the scene of proposed highway work where they will be provided with food and shelter in return for work.

This will be the first step in organization of the large highway construction programme planned by the government as relief work.

PLANNED AS WORK CAMPS
The policy of giving 40 cents per day credit to transients will be stopped as soon as the camps have opened. Ultimately the camps will be used as work camps for those employed on the highway work. When the federal relief plan is known and the other western provinces have decided on uniform measures, the scale of allowances for those at the camps will be determined.

When the construction starts not only transients, but others who need work will find employment there, it is understood.

At the meeting yesterday, it was pointed out many destitute families were now migrating from the prairies, where several areas were faced with crop failures. This has called for immediate action since the plight of some municipalities had become "unbearable."

The question of individual responsibility of the municipalities and the province in regard to care of men in the camps has been left in abeyance until the Dominion plan is known. This, it is anticipated, will be in a few days.

Next to the moon, the planet Saturn is probably the finest object in the heavens for telescope observation. The great ring system of this planet was a puzzle to Galileo with his optically imperfect telescope, but the form and nature of the rings are now more

TIME OF NEEDProvincial Treasurer Says
100,000 Must Be Given
FoodCanadian Press
Montreal, July 23.—About 100,000 residents of Saskatchewan will have to be fed by the provincial and federal governments during the coming winter. Livestock to the number of 150,000 head will have to be taken from drought areas to spots where feed is more plentiful. Yet, Saskatchewan will recover its lost wealth, according to Hon. Howard McConnell, Provincial Treasurer and Minister of Municipal Affairs, a visitor in Montreal to-day.
Yesterday he consulted with officers of the Royal Bank of Canada in connection with the financial situation of the prairie province.Out of the 302 townships in Saskatchewan, seventy-five will require federal and provincial relief during the coming winter, according to Mr. Mc-Connell."The drought has been so bad," he said, "that even potatoes have not grown in some sections of the province.
That is why we will have to feed so many people through the winter. It is without a doubt the most severe rainless spell the west has had since the beginning of the century."THREE POOR YEARS
"People here in the east," he continued, "are inclined to reproach us sometimes because we are now in distress. But you must remember we have had three years of bad crops and very low prices. Actually we have not had a good rain in Saskatchewan since July, 1929."But the present condition in Saskatchewan is only temporary, according to Mr. McConnell. Low crop yields in wheat producing countries and smaller acres sowed will soon absorb the wheat surplus, then prices will rise once more and Saskatchewan will be well off.

the province during the present economic crisis will be welcomed, according to Premier J. T. M. Anderson, who has replied to the "twenty-one demands" of the U.F.C. presented to the administration three weeks ago.The Premier in his reply yesterday declared the problem of assisting the thousands of agriculturists in the drought sections of Saskatchewan was receiving every attention, and added
the federal administration regarded it as a national disaster and would do everything in its power to aid.Premier Anderson made it plain it was not the intention of the government to call a special session of the Legislature to deal with the demands of the U.F.C. and characterized criticism of the government's action on behalf of drought-affected farmers as "unfair and untrue."

DEBT ADJUSTMENT

The demands of the Farmer Association included debt adjustment.
The Premier said the debt adjustment bureau, now in operation, had power sufficiently wide to deal with the matter of adjustments, and he also announced that amendment of the Debt Adjustment Act to include urban dwellers would be sought at the next session of the Legislature.The reply also stated there was under consideration the calling of an economic conference to discuss credit and loan interest conditions.To deal with the problems of relief during the coming winter, a provincial relief commission would be established, and it was planned to give adequate assistance to every settler taking up land in the north country.

TRADE TREATY
TO THE SENATEMeasure Given Third Reading
By House; Barriers Not Ended, Says KingLiberal Leader Points to Differences in Australian and Canadian PreferencesOttawa, July 23.—The Canadian Australia Trade Treaty was before the Senate to-day, having been given third reading in the Commons without a division yesterday evening. It was a day-long discussion in the House. Second reading was taken up in the afternoon. The measure was pushed along with unusual speed, put through the committee stage and given final reading before the 11 p.m.
adjournment came.During the committee stage, when the various tariff items came under review, Premier Bennett stated, in answer to a question from Rt. Hon. W.
L. Mackenzie King, Liberal leader, that the understanding between the two countries was that no changes would be made in the schedules. Consequently they went through with comparatively little discussion.MORE STUDY NEEDED
Mr. King pointed out that Premier Bennett had stated the principle in the last election campaign that nothing could be imported into Canada which could be produced here. The Liberal leader thought there was a departure from that principle. If he had any criticism, it was that the agreement was being brought up at this date.
Sufficient opportunity had not been given for study.It had been stated Canada was getting the British preference on a very large number of items as compared with those which were given by Australia under the old agreement, but the effect of this, Mr. King said, would depend on the British preferential tariff in Australia, which was different from that of Canada. Where the British preference in Canada might be twenty per cent, in Australia it might be forty per cent.BARRIERS ARE HIGH Australia by its tariff policy had made it almost impossible for goods to enter that country even under the British preference. The result of that policy and the effect of trade restriction was shown, he said, by a study of conditions in that country. There was a surtax imposed by Australia against imports and the depreciated currency of that country would limit Australia's purchasing power.With respect to lumber, certain British Columbia men had been in Australia during the former government's administration endeavoring to get public opinion behind the purchase of lumber from this country, and if the Liberal Party had remained in power Mr. King believed the Australian provision would have been changed respecting lumber from this country.

WILL WATCH RESULTS

The effect of the new treaty would be judged only by results. He hoped the new arrangement would prove of benefit so far as Canada was concerned. He quoted trade figures between Canada and Australia from 1925 and 1929 showing an increase in imports and exports.Premier Bennett asked that the 1930 and 1931 figures be given.Mr. King said he did not have those figures, but he believed trade between the two countries had decreased as a result of world conditions.While he was in sympathy with the underlying principle of the treaty—the development of Empire trade—Mr. King was not prepared to speculate on its probable effect, reminding the members that the mere citation of a long series of items on which the Australian British preference rate applied to Canadian goods was not proof of advantage to this country, the height of the Australian preferential tariff in many cases being as great, if not greater, than the Canadian general tariff.

CREDITS SUGGESTED

Believing Canadian producers might encounter difficulty in receiving payment for goods sold in Australia, Wilfred Hanbury, Liberal Vancouver-Burdard, suggested a line of credit be extended in Canada to that dominion.In view of the inflated currency of Australia and its practical prohibition of credits, the British Columbian for-saw difficulties for Canadian exporters seeking to collect their money.

COOTE'S VIEWS

No exception could be taken to the basis underlying the treaty, said G. G.
Coote, U.F.A. McLeod, but in many cases the Australian preferential tariff was so high Canada could not hope to sell much in that country. He thought the "Prime Minister had overemphasized its possibilities. Quoting from a Canadian financial paper which had been discussing the treaty in relation to the depreciated currency of Australia, he agreed that convention penalized the Canadian importer to the extent of 30 per cent. The currency gave a premium amounting to that
Coote said.Canada should suspend payment of notes on a gold basis and let the dollar depend on trade for its value.
If this country would allow its currency to depreciate to the same level as that of Australia, more goods could be sold to that commonwealth. Put more money in circulation, Mr. Coote urged, and give Canadian the same advantage as Australia in the markets of the world.

AUSTRALIAN BARRIERS

Hon. W. D. Euler, Liberal, North Waterloo, Ont., former Minister of National Revenue, said Australia had really made it impossible for certain commodities, even under the British preference, to be imported into that country.British preferential rates in Australia on a number of the items were so high Canada could not possibly export them to Australia. Mr.
Euler cited the following: Clothing, 90 per cent; boots and shoes, 67½ per cent; cordage and twine, 40 per cent;
paints, 35 per cent, and machinery, 35 per cent.

BUYING POWER DECREASES

Mr. Euler said the purchasing power of Australia had decreased, and some Canadian business men who had sold goods to that country two or three years ago had not yet received their money.

He regretted flour, agricultural implements and automobile tires had not been given the preferential tariff.

The treaty would be a matter for trial and test in any event, and a year or two would be required to see how it worked.

FRUIT AND EGGS

A. W. Neill, Independent, Comox-Alberni, said British Columbia fruit growers were complaining they had been forgotten. Poultrymen feared an influx of Australian eggs.However, he believed the treaty would mean a great deal more business for the railways of Canada and the port of Vancouver. He believed it would largely benefit industries in British Columbia. He was sorry there was no preference on pulp and sul-phite.Mr. Neill visualized dangers in New Zealand indirectly benefiting by the treaty terms to ship cream to Australia for manufacture into butter so that commodity might be transported to Canada and enjoy the benefits of the treaty. He warned against the danger of an influx of butter from Australia, recalling that when the previous convention was extended to New Zealand no one had foreseen the flow of butter that ensued as a consequence.

STEVENS SPEAKS

How could the present agreement possibly affect the egg situation since none had been imported from Australia for many years, although they were on the free list, said Hon. H. H. Stevens, Minister of Trade and Commerce. Mr.
Stevens asserted the duty of 5 cents a pound on butter under the treaty was adequate, that the pulp and paper industry had been taken care of, and that the Canadian lumber industry was well satisfied with the convention.This Dominion had opportunities in the Australian market, which were unsurpassed by any other country, he believed.It was true Australia had increased drastically its tariff and placed its exchange under a severe discount, said
Mr. Stevens, but he believed Australia would make an early return to prosperity.Mr. Stevens said Canada and Australia had agreed that, whatever changes might occur in their tariffs, the spread established in the agreement between the British preferential and general tariffs would be maintained.

WORK AUSTRALIA'S
OLD DIGGINGS

Melbourne, Australia, July 23.—

Streams that used to be flecked lavishly with gold, old centres and camps conspicuous with their scars of old-time mining operations, are calling men from the cities of Victoria to prospect for gold. Scattered over the state thousands of men are fossicking (searching about), driven by necessity from the cities which have let them down in their struggle for employment. It is a strange phenomenon.Men of all trades and professions, from sailors to professors, from clerks to laborers, have gone out to old scenes of industry and vanished wealth to pick up crumbs which the diggers of other days might have overlooked, and hoping to "strike it rich." They have pitched their tents all over Victoria.
Even within ten miles of Melbourne
there are groups of men on the banks of streams with their pans, delving and sifting from dawn to sundown.

PERIOD OF NEED

Australia needs gold as it never has done in its history. All the present-day gold seekers were unemployed.
They have been assisted by the state,
which provides them with tools, equipment and rations. Every party is led by an experienced miner. But the men who have never mined before predominate in this army of gold-seekers scattered over Victoria. Very few have given up the hunt, although the work is back-aching and heart-breaking.
They are men who were never idle in their lives, till this year; men who are glad to do something to help themselves. It is the spirit which, it is believed, is going to bring Australia through her difficulties.At any rate, there is something to show for the pluck of these fossickers, grocers, counter-hands and clerks.
The output of gold in Victoria for the first quarter of this year was nearly 9,000 ounces, doubling the previous year. At the present rate of exchange this is valued at $215,000.

NOTHING IN IT

MR. MACKENZIE KING'S STATEMENT
in the House of Commons yesterday afternoon completely punctured the suggestion that his trip to Bermuda during the Easter recess of Parliament last year was paid for by the Beauharnois Company. A voucher had been put into the hands of the committee investigating the power concern's affairs which Senator McDougald already had clearly explained should never have been put in at all, that it was not a correct statement of his expenses in connection with a trip he made to Bermuda about the same time, and that in fact it was wholly erroneous. In spite of this explanation, however, certain newspapers had placed their own interpretations on the senator's evidence and, with the object of trying to make political capital, had left a sinister inference behind. Headlines in one publication were such a palpable distortion that the former Prime Minister rose on a point of personal privilege and made his statement.

Mr. King declared emphatically that no bills had been paid in his behalf by the Beauharnois Company, that he had had no connection whatever with Beauharnois with respect to any matter of travel or anything else, and also that he did not make the trip to Bermuda with Senator McDougald; that any bills that were put into the Beauharnois Company were not put in with his knowledge or with his consent, that they were not put in by him or on his account, but that they were put in by Senator McDougald himself with respect to expenses he himself had incurred. Mr. King then added: "I was horrified when I learned of the voucher that was presented before the committee; so much so that I immediately went to the Prime Minister and told him of my trip to Bermuda and the circumstances surrounding it. I fail yet to understand how any such voucher could possibly have been put in."

The voucher in question mentioned traveling as well as hotel expenses. Mr. King told the Commons that Senator McDougald did not pay any expenses whatever of either Senator Haydon, who accompanied the then Prime Minister, or of himself for transportation to Ottawa to Bermuda, either by land or water, nor did he pay for any transportation from Bermuda back to Ottawa. All Senator McDougald did was to pay some of the hotel expenses while he was a guest of Mr. King and Senator Haydon. Mr. King discovered this when he went to the hotel clerk and asked for his bill; the senator had paid the account—for the most part, not in its entirety—and there was no further charge to be made in connection therewith. In other words, all fair-minded persons will recognize that Senator McDougald, a wealthy man and a personal friend of Mr. King, felt he should return the hospitality he had received, and so paid part of his hotel bill—but had said nothing to Mr. King about it. It also will be noted that although Mr. King combined his holiday with discussions with governmental authorities in Bermuda on the subject of trade, not a cent did he charge against any account of the government.

THE EGG MEN'S DILEMMA

NEVER-LET IT BE SAID AGAIN THAT there is no humor in the tariff. The poultrymen of British Columbia have shown us there is. No sooner had the provisions of the new trade treaty between Canada and Australia been announced than the Egg Producers' Association of British Columbia, 3,000 strong, wired to Hon. H. H. Stevens and told him that if eggs from Australia entered Canada free in the months of January and February, the industry in this province would be completely ruined. Nothing could save it from this dire consequence unless the provision in question were cancelled.

But Mr. Stevens positively refused to be perturbed, and the Egg Producers' Association now fully understands why the Minister remained calm under the bombardment of telegrams from his own province and numerous statements in the newspapers. Not even the full details of the amount of capital invested by British Columbia's commercial egg producers—all of which they said would be in jeopardy if eggs from Australia came into Canada free during January and February—had any effect upon him, at least for a time. Then he wired to one of the newspapers which had published statements from the egg men to say that no eggs had come into Canada from Australia since the treaty of 1925 went into effect, although under that arrangement they could have come in free of duty every month if the Australian producers had desired the use of the privilege. Under the new pact, however, eggs from the southern Dominion are required to pay the British preferential duty for ten months of the year, and can come in free during January and February only.

So the egg producers of this province have ten times more protection now than they had before in the matter of Australian eggs; but this provision of the treaty is more window-dressing than anything else, as the experience of the last six years shows. Still, how are the officials of the Egg Producers' Association who discovered this mythical threat of ruin for their industry going to explain those wires and newspaper statements to the three thousand poultrymen who belong to the organization?

A NEW PENAL CODE

THE RE-ESTABLISHMENT OF THE death penalty in Italy is the feature of the new Italian penal code that has drawn most attention in this country. After years in which treason was the only crime punishable by death, Italy has returned to the custom of most other nations by making murder a capital offence also.

However, certain other features of the new penal code are well worth study. One of the most notable is the provision whereby prisoners are compelled to pay for their board and room in prison if they are financially able. There is a lot of good sense in that, and one wonders why other nations have not thought of it. Related to it is the new Italian ruling basing fines on the criminal's capacity to pay and not on the size of his offence.

These provisions indicate that Italy's new code is not simply a return to stricter methods of punishment, but is based on a scientific study of criminology.

TWENTIETH CENTURY TASKS

TO THE STUDENTS OF MALVERN College recently Sir Basil Blackett presented his views on the world of to-day and what he thinks the attitude of youth should be towards the present century. Part of his observations follow:

Never before has the rate of change in the world been so dizzy as in the past thirty years. The supreme need of the day is for young minds, able and willing, to question every institution, to take nothing for granted, to be iconoclasts in the good sense, devoted to the destruction of idols. The nineteenth century was content to believe that, by relying on laissez-faire and the enlightened self-interest of individual enterprise, progress through competition was assured to mankind. To-day we see that it is not so. Planning ahead and thinking ahead are the tasks of the twentieth century.

If the older generation were to be brought before a body of intelligent young men and severely questioned on present conditions in the world, they would probably experience a good deal of embarrassment. How would they explain the war—the collapse of statesmanship which was responsible for the loss of millions of lives and the dissipation of billions in treasure? They might be asked how it is that in a world where there is a surplus of wheat so many millions are daily going hungry. Questions about the causes of the present economic recession might be very pointed. The spectacle of the nations victorious in the Great War frantically trying to save one of the vanquished nations from the consequences of that conflict is naturally puzzling to the thoughtful youth.

As Sir Basil Blackett says, every institution should be questioned, nothing taken for granted. And a great deal more scepticism exists in the young mind to-day than is generally realized. Present-day student audiences are much more critical than some of the learned professors think they are.

PLOUGHING A LONELY FURROW

OUR MORNING CONTEMPORARY and Mr. Bennett evidently are far apart in their views on the St. Lawrence deepening project. The Colonist says there are far more important problems before Canada than this, and that "it can await the processes of development in the decades that lie ahead."

At the final session of the last Parliament, Mr. Bennett, then leader of the opposition, betrayed no little impatience because negotiations between the Dominion government and the government at Washington appeared to him to be moving much more slowly than they would if he were in charge of them. And it will be remembered that the appointment of Mr. Herridge to the Canadian legation at Washington was welcomed in many quarters favorable to Mr. Bennett and his party because it would mean that action on the St. Lawrence project would be hastened.

The morning paper's suggestion that the proposal would mean "that this Dominion would be subsidizing a transportation facility for American traffic" will surprise Mr. Bennett, who, as the record shows, is in agreement with Mr. Mackenzie King on the international aspects of the undertaking. Mr. Bennett also knows, of course, that there is a proposal before the United States Congress for the development of the Erie Canal from Lake Erie to the Hudson River, which, if it were adopted, would mean that not only would all the American traffic from the Great Lakes be diverted by this route to the Atlantic seaboard, but the greater part of the Canadian traffic as well.

This is one of the reasons why Mr. Bennett is anxious to proceed with the negotiations, as he announced the other day they are proceeding, so that all risk of such consequences may be averted.

WHAT OTHER PAPERS SAY

TARIFF AND DEBTS

The London Times

No general revival can be expected until fundamental obstacles to international trade are removed. What is really needed is not general inflation, but the demobilization of excessive tariffs and the scaling down of war debts to a reasonable level, and, above all, the abandonment of the attempt on the part of producers to drumbeat the inevitable laws of supply and demand. There is no short cut to world prosperity by the path of monetary manipulation.

COL. STARNES RETIRES

The Montreal Star

After nearly half a century of service with the R.C.M.P., Colonel Cortlandt Starnes, has sent in his resignation. He has spent his whole life with the force since he came of age, and has won his way from the ranks to the supreme command. It was the Royal Northwest Mounted when Col. Starnes, then a youth of twenty-two, was accepted for service. He went through every branch, served with distinction, saw the force grow in importance and in range of service, and for a number of years was instrumental in developing its usefulness along new paths of activity. He was able to handle the men with success because he had been one of them. He knew the rigors of the Arctic patrol, the monotonous strain of routine work upon the plains, and the exacting standard of duty the force demands from all who serve it. He never asked any of his men to do anything he would not have hesitated from attempting to do himself. The records of the Mounted show that he had many notable achievements to his credit, but these are never paraded. Canada has always had good reason to be proud of the Royal Canadian Mounted. The fame of the force has spread around the world and no man has done more to uphold it and to keep it unswayed than the commandant who now, after forty-six years of service, lays down his command. His successor, Major-General MacBrien, is one of Canada's most distinguished soldiers, a man eminently well equipped both by experience and by qualifications, to take up the onerous duties of administration. He has splendid traditions to uphold, but he may be relied upon to maintain them worthily.

A THOUGHT

There is no iniquity with the Lord our God, nor respect of persons, nor taking of gifts.—Chronicles xiv. 7. Gifts, they weigh like mountains on a sensitive heart. To me they are often punishments than pleasures.—Mme. Fee.

Loose Ends

Concerning campaign funds and other things—loyalty to a vague abstraction and the illusions of politics.

By H. B. W.

CONCERNING POLITICAL campaign funds, which are under intensive consideration at Ottawa just now, there is more bunk than concerning anything I know of. Campaign funds are an obsession, even with many of the most honest politicians; and generally they don't mean anything; generally they don't affect the result of elections at all. This must be obvious by the simplest calculation of mathematics, for those governments naturally are able to gather larger funds than oppositions (having more to offer in immediate return) still, governments are defeated quite regularly and oppositions elected. But your professional politician doesn't see that. He is so immersed in the details of campaigning, so intent on sending a distinguished speaker to some isolated community, or giving an expensive picnic for some type in the backwoods, that he overlooks the great tides of public opinion which money cannot buy, no matter how much you spend.

THE REAL USE of campaign funds in large sums nowadays is not to win elections nor is it to bribe the public or do other dishonest things. The real use of them is to pay the army of cheap and needy hangers-on who cling to every politician, party, and have to be paid for a job of work which often they don't do and which, when done, isn't worth doing. They have to be paid, not because practical politicians consider them necessary or very useful, but because practical politicians are afraid to drop any chance of support; and thus grasping for the support of such people, they often lose the support of the public. Only last week the leader of a successful political party said to me: "We paid $50 and $50 and $50, and hundreds of others, so much a day to canvass in Vancouver in the last election and found that most of them had turned in detailed reports of their investigations, though they had spent all their time meanwhile playing cards in the back of a pool room." That is where campaign funds go. They are wasted, but mark this—the campaign fund contributors on a large scale don't waste their money. They are sure of something definite in return before they give it, which is the essential rottenness of the whole system.

THE PROPOSAL that campaign funds be made public, as in the United States, is sound, but the plan should go further. Every man who canvasses, makes speeches or campaigns in any fashion, should be compelled to declare whether he is being paid for it or not. Then the voters would know whether the motives of a political worker, high or low, were political or financial. I fancy it would be rather a shock to many electors to learn that some prominent citizens who tour British Columbia to make speeches in election times are paid a regular fee per day, as well as their expenses. The poor public imagines that they are advocating one cause or another because they believe in it. If they were compelled to state the amount of their fee, that would be a protection to the public and to the other men who campaign without remuneration, for the faith that is in them. As for political leaders, they would find to their amazement and delight that while they would be robbed of the services of some brilliant mercenaries, their cause would be taken up and carried forward by many more people who, under present conditions, prefer to stay out of politics altogether.

I WAS DISCUSSING the dismal Beauharnois matter to-day with a gentleman who, on account of his wide experience, is well able to form an opinion on such things, and he advanced this somewhat staggering proposition—namely, that, while we hide it better behind a white facade of respectability, we Canadians, as a people, are far more materialistic, far more cynical than our much-abused neighbors, the Americans. This, I say, is a staggering thought, for two reasons. First, because we have been accustomed to regard ourselves, secretly, at least, and often openly, as a bit above American methods in politics and in business. Secondly, it is staggering, because, in the light of present events, it seems true. Of course, comparisons on such a great scale are difficult and dangerous, but the record of Canadian high finance in the last few years, with the Beauharnois incident as a dizzy climax, is about as sorry a business as you could imagine. Things in United States, I suppose, are not much better; they have put a few members in jail, including a former member of the Harding cabinet, and they have refused to allow a number of bemuddled senators to take their seats in Congress.

CURIOSLY ENOUGH my eye has just lit upon an article by Mr. G. K. Chesterton (our old and badly-used friend), which seems to bear on this subject. Mr. Chesterton is discussing his final impressions of this continent, and he comes to the conclusion that the great weakness in our society here is our divided sense of loyalty. "What is the matter with America," says Mr. Chesterton, "is it that every American has been tacitly or loudly taught that his job is not only more vital than his vote, but more vital than that virtue of public spirit which the vote represents. But because of his private virtue, which is stronger than his public virtue, this has produced mere selfishness. What it has produced is a queer sort of feudal loyalty. And, just as in the Dark Ages, the result of mere feudal loyalty has been mere feudal anarchy. The reporter whose only duty is to report for his paper, the salesman whose only duty is to call for his boss,

BURN KIRK'S COAL

"DOES LAST LONGER"

HAVE created an atmosphere like that of the half-barbarous heroism of the Song of Roland, in which a man must lose his hair and hide for his lord. But not of organization, in the sense of order. It is utterly, disorganized by its organizations. They have a sort of feverish fidelity and ferocity."

THERE, I THINK, you have one of the root causes of such events as Beauharnois and the promotion of various other glittering schemes which have proved ruinous of late to Canadian investors. Men are loyal to their parties, to their political parties, to a burning loyalty, but the sense of loyalty and duty to that vague abstraction called "the state" hardly exists at all, except when it flares up in a war, when the state appears in immediate danger. That the state may be much more in danger through crookedness in public life, through fraud in business and through the disgust and discontent of its citizens—that is something which we scarcely ever pause to realize.

THE DIFFICULTY, of course, is that our immediate loyalties are easily understood. You see your boss or your political chieftain every day, you understand him and probably believe in him. But you never see the state. You never understand it, and you never believe in it. It is extremely vague. You would probably be willing to die for it in an emergency, but you don't just know how to go about living for it in ordinary times. And it is because everybody is paying loyal attention to his job, in business or in politics, and scarcely anyone is paying any attention to the state, that things like Beauharnois are arranged by men who, in the ordinary relations of life, are probably very nice fellows.

THE VICTORIA DAILY TIMES, July 23, 1906
From The Times Files

At the flower show to be held on August 1, in the Drill Hall, prizes will be given for the best collection of fruit and for the best two bunches of grapes.

Weather Forecast—Victoria a d vicinity: Light to moderate winds, generally fair and cool. The business of the convention of the Pacific Coast Advertising Men's Association closed at noon on Saturday. The members, however, prolonged their stay in the city until yesterday afternoon, when they left for their homes after spending a most delightful time in Victoria. They view with each other in praises of Victoria and the kindness of her citizens, classifying the convention which had just closed, as the best in the history of the organization.

The "Big Four" who will represent the J.B.A.A. at the Nelson regatta did not leave until this morning. It was intended that all the coast crews should travel together, meeting in Seattle, but these arrangements were changed at the last minute.

RELIEF WORK

To the Editor:—I would like you to publish this letter to enlighten some of our business managers and men in steady jobs. I am afraid some of them don't realize how poor conditions are, what the relief work consists of. They know the men received three days a week, but they don't know that this has been all that they received in the winter, until the last two months, when they have had two turns, which is six days a month. I wonder how many of them could keep a family of six on about $24 a month. I would like some of the steady income people to have a try and see what a strain it is on the nerves. It is hard on the men, but worse on the mothers. They see what the children need and can't get for them, and these conditions are telling on the people and the children. Unless something is done before the winter comes there will be a lot of sickness, both physical and mental. It is a splendid thing men giving large sums of money to help the unemployed, but if the men are only going to receive $24 a month, it is of very little use. If they could use that money to give them steady employment at about $100 a month, everything would start moving again. Living is cheap, but unless you have money you cannot buy.

I have heard people say that conditions aren't any worse now than they were in 1914, but I have been through both, and know that things were never like this then. Through unemployment we have been compelled to live on relief work for over six months, and being out of work our savings account went. I hope when business men come to help us find a way to improve conditions, instead of saying, "I have a steady job and don't need to bother about this unemployment."

FREE ECONOMY

To the Editor:—Regarding my letter of July 6 on "Capitalism and Socialism," I have heard many people remark, who is Gersell and what is "Free Economy" and the "Natural Economic Order"? For their information I will quote the following by the late Dr. Theophil Christen:

"Those who attack an opponent objectively do well to admit freely anything that they consider correct in his arguments. We who believe in free economy declare expressly that we accept the Socialists' criticism of the existing economic system. We condemn capitalist exploitation of the workers and we propose to examine its fundamental causes. The first writer, as far as we know, to reduce the characteristics of exploitation to a formula was the French social philosopher Pierre Joseph Proudhon. In eloquent words he pointed out the injustice of allowing property to be a source of income, unconnected with any kind of work to its holder. This is the truth contained in his much-debated aphorism, 'Property is theft.' Perhaps because of his paradoxical style Proudhon has for eighty years been ignored and misunderstood. Nevertheless it is impossible to dispute his proposition, which we shall now examine more closely—that unearned income is an economic injustice. Let us imagine the whole picture of one year's work and one year's services represented by a great block. In economic justice the block should be divided among all those who have worked. Those who contributed nothing to the block should receive nothing at its distribution. This fundamental proposition of socialism is simple justice. But how is it with the actual distribution? The produce of the year's work is sold for money and work or service is rewarded by money. Those who take part in the distribution must pay money. How do they obtain it? Here we find two groups. The first group has obtained its money as wages (in the widest sense) in return for the surrender of produce or for service. The other group has received its money as interest on capital, either as interest on loan money or as rent. Wage-earners work for their income, receivers of interest have an income without work. In civilized countries the total of wages is about equal to the total of interest. Receivers of interest can, therefore, buy about half the produce block for the wage-earners only the other half remains to them. The wage-earners, at its distribution they must surrender half their share to the owners of property. We have, therefore, divided the block into two parts, W. (wages) and I. (interest). The injustice of a distribution of the product of labor is apparent. With such a system we cannot speak of 'free competition' or of a 'free play of economic forces,' for only the forces of exploitation have free play, never the forces of production. That this injustice in the distribution of the product of labor is quite as extreme in the United States as in any other country is proved by the following striking quotation:—

"We look again at the U.S.A.—the twentieth century Croesus. Wealth, vast quantities of wealth, enough to abolish poverty throughout the land; ninety per cent of this wealth owned by thirteen per cent of the people; one per cent of the people owning fifty-nine per cent of it; seventy-seven per cent of the people owning no smallest portion of it; fifty per cent of the national income going to capital; not a single cent of it going to labor; where in all the land any evidence of a single industrial group in which the annual income of a wage-earner is sufficient to enable him to support a wife and children in a decent way, with the low standard set by a group of employers; the average wage for the country as a whole $1,260 a year, including the worker, who is the father of dependent children, to chronicle of forcing him into an acceptance of public or private charity in the event of any ordinary sickness; and these same charities quadrupling their budgets in a single decade. This is the richest nation on earth."

"The figures for England, given by Sir L. Chichester-More and Poverty" are still more conclusive evidence of exploitation of the national wealth of England. Ninety per cent is possessed by four per cent of the population and ten per cent by ninety-five per cent of the population. A very simple calculation shows whether an individual is a victim or a beneficiary of unearned income. The total income of the U.S.A. in the year 1919 was, for example, $58,000,000,000, of which forty per cent was unearned income, therefore, amounted to at least $23,200,000,000, with a population of 104,200,000, or $223 per head of the population. This is the amount of the annual tribute paid by the worker to the non-working capitalist; directly in the form of rent and indirectly as rent and interest in the price of everything he buys. If we take the case of a worker with a wife and two children, his share of the burden of unearned income is four times $223 or $892 which, with interest at five per cent, represents a capital of $17,840. If the worker possesses less capital than this he is a victim of interest, paying more rent and interest than he receives. Only if he accumulates more than $17,840 capital does he begin to benefit by interest. How many workers possess this amount of capital when seventy-seven per cent of the people own no smallest portion of the national wealth? The overwhelming majority of the population are victims, not beneficiaries of unearned income. The aim of socialism is to abolish such exploitation and this aim we approve; it is only the Socialists' method, namely the nationalization of production, that we reject."

Miss Dorothy Bird Charms 300 Guests at "Molton Combe"

Mr. and Mrs. Curtis Sampson Hosts at Garden Fete For Solarium

Exceeding the most sanguine expectations of its sponsors, the garden party given by Mr. and Mrs. Curtis Sampson at their charming home, "Molton Combe," Newport Avenue, yesterday afternoon, proved an outstanding success, attracting nearly 300. The weather was ideal for such an event and the lovely old trees and emerald lawns with their fringe of gay blossoms formed a picturesque setting for the delightful affair.

FOR SOLARIUM
Mrs. J. A. MacDonald, wife of the Official Administrator, and one of the patrons, in a brief but gracious little address, commended the object of the undertaking—the Queen Alexandra Solarium for crippled children, congratulating all who had assisted in the arrangement of the afternoon. Other patrons included Mrs. S. F. Tolmie, Mrs. Herbert Anson, Mrs. W. C. Nichol, Mrs. J. Sutherland Brown, and Mr. W. B. Laidlaw, a member of the Solarium board of directors, of which Mrs. Sampson is president. Miss Stone and Dr. Sherman of the Solarium staff were present, together with Mrs. H. R. Gale, Messrs. Goulding Wilson and Robert Baird of the directorate.

DANCE DEMONSTRATION
Miss Dorothy Bird, a gifted young Victorian, who has recently returned from New York, where she has been studying dancing under Martha Graham, gave an interesting and unusual recital. She preceded it with a demonstration of the various movements aimed at the development of technique, showing how these were based on the harmonization of percussion and rhythm. Her dancing is of the modern school, and her numbers included an Irish dance, a "Greek Prayer," and in response to instant demands for an encore, "Valse Triste," an improvisation. Her performance evoked much applause for its grace, intense vitality and beauty of interpretation.

CITY TEACHER PRETTY BRIDE AT BAPTIST CHURCH

Miss Etta Hamilton Wallace Married to William J. Hamilton Yesterday

Unusually pretty in all its details was the wedding held at the Central Baptist Church yesterday evening, when Mrs. J. B. Rowell united in marriage Miss Etta Hamilton Wallace, second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Wallace, of 1127 Bay Street, to William John Hamilton, eldest son of Mrs. Jessie Hamilton, of Linden Avenue. The bride has been a popular teacher at the Quadra Primary School, while the bridegroom is accountant in the firm of Lunney Bros., and also secretary of the Builders' Exchange.

The ceremony was performed beneath an archway of Shasta dahlias and pink godelias. Miss Kathleen Cuff was at the organ as the bride entered the church with her father, looking charming in her wedding gown of ivory bridal satin, falling in long soft folds to the ankle, three frills on the left side relieving the simplicity of the skirt, while a short jaquette of rose point lace lent character to the bodice. Her veil of embroidered net was caught at the nape of the neck with a circle of orange blossoms ending in a cabochon of the blossoms over each ear. She carried a lovely shower bouquet of lilies of the valley and maidenhair fern.

BRIDAL ATTENDANTS
The bride had three attendants, all gowned in the pastel shades. Her sister, Miss Nellie Wallace, was the maid of honor in a becoming frock of Nile green flat crepe made in ankle-length and finished at the hip and neckline with three tiny frills of the material. Her Watteau hat was of Nile green mohair, trimmed with a velvet bow and French flowers, and she wore eggshell lace mitts and carried a shower bouquet of coral sweet peas and maidenhair fern. Miss Ina Wallace, another sister, was the bridesmaid, charmingly gowned in a pale pink crepe satin, in ankle-length, with a coat of the material finished at the neck with orchid velvet camellias. With her she wore lace mitts and carried a hat of orchid mohair, trimmed with two-tone velvet ribbon and flowers, and carried a shower bouquet of mauve sweet peas and maidenhair fern.

Little Marguerite Mackay, niece of the groom, was a dainty flower-girl in a frock of powder blue georgette over rose satin, trimmed with tiny French roses, and wearing a silver sash. In her hair, and silver slippers, she carried a basket of pink roses and sweet peas. Master Jackie King, a nephew of the bride, was a boy, wearing a jaunty white sailor suit. During the signing of the register, Mr. MacAllister Wallace of Vancouver, a cousin of the groom, acted as "Best Man," Mr. Frank Hamilton, brother of the bridegroom, was best man, and the ushers were Messrs. Roy Daniel and Donald MacIsaac.

RECEPTION HELD
After the ceremony, a largely attended reception was held at 720 1/2 Fort Street, the many guests being received by Mrs. Wallace, mother of the bride, handsomely gowned in deep blue blue chiffon with cream lace yoke, and a hat of black and grey flat crepe with velvet of French lace, and a black lace hat. Both wore corsage bouquets of roses and sweet peas.

Supper was served from a table centred by the handsome four-tiered wedding cake, flanked with roses and sweet peas and tall pink and silver holders. During the evening Miss Mona Bradford sang "Calm as the Night," and Mr. M. Wallace sang "Cullin'."

Later Mr. and Mrs. Hamilton left for Vancouver, from where they will motor through Washington and Oregon, the bride traveling in a smart sports ensemble comprising a yellow figured crepe jacket over a frock of white flat crepe, with hat of basket straw in tone of yellow, trimmed with velvet and flowers to tone with the dress, and sports velour with fur collar. Later they will make their home in Victoria.

Among the many beautiful gifts received by the young couple were a silver tea service and Sheffield tray from Lunney Bros., a silver flower basket from the Builders' Exchange, and household linen and a silver casserole from the children and staff of Quadra Primary School.

trimmings with pleated ruffles. She carried a bouquet of bridal roses and carnations with maidenhair fern. After a brief honeymoon in Victoria, Mr. and Mrs. Satterlund will be taking up their residence on 1804 North Fifty-seventh Street, Seattle.

A wedding of unusual interest in both eastern and western Canada was quietly solemnized in Edmonton on Monday last when Mr. Richard Finnie, who has just returned after a year's research work among the blonde Eskimos of the Arctic, and Miss Alya Robert, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Julian Robert of San Francisco, were united in marriage. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. O. S. Finnie of Ottawa, director of the Northwest Territories, and the bride is a graduate of the University of California and holds degrees from the Sorbonne, University of Paris and from Spanish universities. Their marriage is the outcome of a romance which started in Paris in 1928 when the bridegroom was studying art and the bride was at the Sorbonne. The ceremony was marked by the greatest simplicity, with Mr. Milton Morton as best man, and Mr. and Mrs. Finnie will leave shortly for Ottawa.

INSTITUTE HELPS NEEDY SETTLERS

Royal Oak W.I. Receives Grateful Letter From Peace River Nurse

While the cities are talking of depression and hard times, the settlers in the remote districts of the province are having their struggles, pioneering under great difficulties. To help these hard-working people, the Red Cross has opened a number of nursing outposts in the Peace River district, to which women's organizations of the city have been giving valuable and practical assistance by sending layettes, clothing and other supplies. The Royal Oak Women's Institute recently collected and dispatched three parcels of new materials and patterns to Miss Muriel Claxton, nurse in charge at the Red Cross outpost at Grand Haven, B.C., and the appreciation of the recipients is revealed in her letter sent to Miss Oldfield, president of the institute and couched in the following terms:

"I wish that you and other members of your institute could have seen with what delight your parcels were opened. Three such splendid parcels, and they all arrived in excellent condition. I had staying with me at the time a mother of six, waiting for number seven. She is such a thrifty, capable, little woman, just the right sort for a pioneer country like this, but has had very little to wait for lately. I was able to make her very happy with a dress length for each child, and she so enjoyed-looking-at-the-other-pretty materials and selecting patterns. Her new baby has now arrived safely, and she is looking forward to getting home. She is eager to show the rest of the family their new little sister, also their new clothes. Probably in that family the new clothes will be the greatest novelty. Most of the women here are clever at mending and making over old things to dress the children in, but they do enjoy something new sometimes, or at least, unfamiliar. Thank you."

RECALLS EARLY DAYS IN FORT

Widow of Pioneer R.N.W.M.P. Commissioner Reminiscent; Born in Red River

Canadian Press

Winnipeg, July 23.—Mrs. Macleod, widow of Col. James Farquharson Macleod, Commissioner of the Northwest Mounted Police in early, stirring days in western Canada, in a recent interview recalled some of the historic scenes through which she had passed with her husband. Mrs. Macleod was born on the Red River, and is a member of the pioneer Drever family—her father was William Drever—which came with the Orkney settlement and Lord Selkirk, in 1812.

"I remember during the Rebellion when we feared Riel was going to have Major Boulton shot," Mrs. Macleod said. "I was down at the place. Nobody knew him, so Riel decided to make him an example to terrorize the loyal settlers. Scott was given a trial with all the questions asked in French, which he could not understand, and then they shot him."

CARRIED REPORT
"When Major Butler came to Fort Garry ahead of Wolsey," said Mrs. Macleod, "I was down at the place. My host, the Rev. Mr. Gardiner, came in with a stranger."

"Mary," he said to me, "this is Major Butler, who is leaving to join General Wolsey. His report must be taken back to Fort Garry, and sent to Lower Canada without falling into Riel's hands. Will you take it?" "I must have been about seventeen at the time, and I do not know why I was not afraid, but I put the papers in my blouse and started the long drive back to Fort Garry. I had no sooner arrived when a party of rebels came to our stable and searched my blouse. 'Did you see any danger at the Rapids?' they asked me. 'No,' I said, the papers still in my blouse. 'Are you sure you passed nobody between here and the Rapids?' Again I said 'no,' and I must have convinced them, for we were able to send the papers east."

MARRIED IN 1876
Mrs. Macleod told about her marriage to Colonel Macleod in 1876. He had come to Fort Garry as brigade major on General Wolsey's staff. They were married at 5 o'clock, and that evening he had to leave on a tour of his territory, and they did not see each other until many months later, when he joined her in Chicago, on her return from a trip to Toronto. Then began a thrilling journey for the bride. She went with her husband and his men by Portage la Prairie and Dauphin to Fort Pelly for the first Northwest Council. It was clear winter weather, and they traveled by dog-team, and pitched their tents on the vast, snow-covered prairie where the lonely howl of the wolves vied with the winter wind. "The driver of my sleigh," said Mrs. Macleod, "was hanged the following year for murder."

Then the scene of Mrs. Macleod's life shifted to Fort Macleod, which had been founded by her husband in 1874. Here young Mrs. Macleod would always go on the morning ride with her husband and the men. There were many times when the few tents of the Mounted Police were surrounded by dozens of Indian tepees, yet Mrs. Macleod felt none of the fear that she had known in Fort Garry when the Sioux came up from Minnesota after the massacre, and the air was sharp with foreboding, and in at the windows peered strange, dark faces.

The Indians encamped near the Northwest Mounted Police were not strangers, but their charges, and their children, for they were deputies of the Great White Queen. "My husband always took the Indians' word," said Mrs. Macleod, proudly, "and they would do anything for Stamix-to-kan, as they called him, for they trusted him completely."

Under Col. Macleod's administration, the liquor trader was routed; the Indians knew him as their mentor and friend, and a firm foundation was laid for the future achievements of the N.W.M.P. in the west.

Protest Against Shipping Of Live Horses Abroad

In connection with the shipping of live horses from Canada to France for slaughter, the local Anti-Vivisection Society has taken up the question with the Toronto Humane Society, which is already in communication with Ottawa. Letters of protest have also been sent to the Prime Minister, the Minister of Agriculture and D. Plunkett, M.P., and to societies interested in animal protection in Alberta and Vancouver. According to press reports 500 horses will be shipped abroad monthly. Petition forms which are to be sent in protest to the Dominion Government on the subject of the live horse traffic may be signed with Miss D. Kitto, 315 Sayward Building, and through G. T. Maurice, Brankes Court, and other interested persons.

YOUR BABY and MINE

By MRS. MARY ELLEN LEE

Mrs. Eldred will be glad to answer all questions pertaining to babies and children. A stamped and self-addressed envelope forwarded to this office will bring a personal reply.

BABY SHOULD BE WEANED BY TENTH MONTH

Nine months is the age at which to begin weaning. At ten months the weaning should be completed and the child on all milk feedings. This is probably one of the complications in this non-sleeping situation which is harassing Mrs. A. S.

"My baby is nearly ten months old," she writes. "He was premature, weighing six pounds, and now weighs twenty-four. He has two teeth. I feed him wheat cereal for breakfast and supper, vegetables for dinner and two eight-ounce feedings of milk a day. The rest of his nourishment he gets by breast."

WILL NOT SLEEP

"My problem is sleeping. I put him to bed at 7:30 p.m. and he simply refuses to go to sleep, even though he does not nap late in the afternoon. He is not played with very much and is never soothed about. If he cries for a long time I have been in the habit of picking him up and I think now that is the trouble. I would let him cry it out one or two nights, but people tell me he will rupture himself, and this makes me afraid. He is definitely not sick. Once or twice when I have let him cry and have then picked him up he has vomited. Is this temper?"

"I have a three-year-old daughter and this baby, and as I have no one to help me the only free time I have is at night."

DIET NEEDS CHECK-UP

Not only are you entitled to evenings free of the children but baby is likewise entitled to his rest. I doubt very much if you have analyzed the situation correctly. I do not think it is temper, but probably insufficient food. He is an enormous weight, and I would stop nursing him. Put him on four bottles of milk a day with vegetables and cereals and orange juice daily. The vomiting might be attributed to exertion after eating, or it might mean that baby has worked hard to get enough nourishment from an empty breast. It depends largely on whether he is bottle or breast fed at this time.

"I have seen a baby vomit copiously after nursing for fifteen minutes and gaining nothing in weight, indicating that no milk had been imbibed, while the mother, certain that she had milk, refused to wean the baby."

See that the baby has one long nap right after the ten or eleven o'clock feeding, and one short nap, not to exceed one hour, between two and three. Then let him stay awake until after six or seven o'clock dinner. If he does not go to sleep immediately do not take him up but sit by the bed for a few moments so that he remains lying down. Babies go to sleep easily if they can be kept quiet, but often keep themselves awake by gurgling about.

Stop worrying about the rupture. See that the diet is improved and weaning completed, and then expect that the baby will go to sleep if he is kept quiet. Some mothers have achieved this by putting the baby in a diaper into a sleeping bag made of the thinnest of cotton material. In this the baby cannot grasp anything and thus himself up and being thus hampered, lies quietly and goes to sleep.

To-morrow: "Seasonal Rash Discomforting to the Baby."

At the close of the meeting the junior members entertained the sisters and knights at a banquet, the tables being prettily decorated with bowls of delphiniums. Those responsible for the affair, and who assisted in serving were Mesdames Olive Carter, Vera Barry, Winnie MacRay, Winnie Blair and Miss Vera Macleod.

On Wednesday, July 29, the annual garden party will be held at the home of Mrs. Dodd, 425 Edgeware Road. There will be a home-cooking stall, in charge of Mrs. MacDowall, and fancy work and novelty stalls. Afternoon teas will be served at a nominal charge. 'Lefty' Grove Earns Place Among Immortals of Baseball

Mack's $100,000 Hurler Should Win at Least Thirty Games This Season

Grove's Most Unhittable Ball Is a Straight, Fast One

Alice Marble Appears Likely Successor to Helen Wills Moody

BASEBALL immortals will have to make over and make room for one more. The one is Grove. He has established himself during the last four years as not only the greatest left-hander, but the greatest pitcher in baseball to-day. At the season's half-way mark this year he had won seventeen games and lost two. He is well on the way towards winning thirty-five games. Walter Johnson's record, established in 1913, is thirty-six victories. Cy Young won thirty-five in 1905. Grove is pitching his way right up among them. At the present time he has won nineteen and lost two.

Twice this year the southpaw for whom Connie Mack paid $100,000 six years ago has run winning streaks to eight games. From the start of the season of 1929, when Grove began to show real form up to the middle of the present campaign, Grove had lost only twenty-one games, while winning eighty-nine. He won twenty-four and lost eight in 1929; won twenty-eight and lost five last year. He is now on a bet to pass thirty this year. Only once this year, when sent in as a relief pitcher, has he failed to win, and that game went into extra innings.

"As he goes on," said Connie Mack the other day, "and overcomes that little habit of fretfulness, he will become as great as Waddell."

It is still true that Grove at times flares up in anger. But this year instances of his petulance have been few. Just as he overcame his wildness he has mastered himself. To-day he is taking things as they come. He has learned to laugh at setbacks. He is no longer the Temperamental Tossie who refused to pose for photographers several years ago.

One of the peculiarities of Grove's pitching is that his most unhittable ball seems to be a straight fast one down the groove. If they start hitting it, he just throws faster.

There is very little hop on Lefty's hard one. He has short fingers and small hands. He can pitch straight across the centre of the dish so swiftly that batters cannot follow the streak from hand to plate.

He went in as pinch pitcher in the world series at St. Louis. The tip of his index finger was raw. Mack did not start him in that series. The Chicago Cubs were expected to murder any southpaw who faced them, but they didn't murder Moore.

Straight and low the ball came whistling, right down the groove. He pitched ten strikes in the first eleven balls he hurled.

Mack's confidence in him as a relief man also was exemplified in one of the series games. When the going got rough, Earnshaw had pitched scoreless two and a half innings. Yet Mack took Big George out in the eighth to let Moore bat. The result was a victory for Moore, but it was a victory for Grove, who had pitched a full game the day before. The only hit off Grove in those two innings was a single by Frisch after two were out.

There's a new California girl in the lawn tennis field. Her name is Alice Marble, and in the opinion of a goodly number of qualified critics she is destined to become the successor to Mrs. Helen Wills Moody, and in all probability greater. She is a goodly cause of a game of much wider range. Miss Marble is only eighteen, but she won the California championship this season in a five-set match against an ally strong California, where Helen Wills Moody and Helen Jacobs made their start.

Above her class she won the California State singles, also the U.S. hard-court crown for girls under eighteen years of age. The greatest performance accomplished by her was the defeat of Dorothy Wessel, ranked No. 3 in the U.S. Miss Marble has a terrific service and smash. Fast play has always been the watchword of California tennis. Miss Marble is a protégé of Pop Fuller.

Latzo Is Beaten

Mickey Takes All Glory After Rough And Tumble Brawl

Battle-scarred Mickey Surprised Even His Most Enthusiastic Backers by Power of Attack Against Sharkey in Fifteen-round Bout at Brooklyn; Sharkey Unable to Cope With Dynamic Rushes of Opponent; Referee and Judges Disagree on Decision; Sharkey Warned for Fouling

Brooklyn, July 23.—The official decision says that Jack Sharkey didn't lose, but on lion-hearted little Mickey Walker fightdom to-day showers all the glory, acclaim and golden promises that go to a newcomer scaling the heavyweight heights. In the very heart of the heavyweight picture is the rugged, grinning battle-scarred face of the chunky Irishman from Rumson, N.J., welterweight and middleweight titleholder in his times, now at least as good as Sharkey, because two learned judges and a referee compromised on a draw after fifteen rounds of hurly-burly battle in Ebbets Field yesterday evening.

EAGLES WILL PLAY AGAINST TACOMA NINE

Feathered Tribe Will Be Given First Exhibition Game Here on Saturday

Elks Will Appear in Other Fixture; Visitors Bringing Formidable Club

With victories over the Elks and Sons of Canada in their last two starts, the Eagles will show in their first exhibition game of the season on Saturday, when they stack up against the flashy Jack and Jill nine from Tacoma. In one of the two games on the programme, the Elks will take the other game, but it has not been definitely decided which game the clubs will take.

Determined to take the measure of the local clubs in both ends of the twin bill, the visitors are bringing a classy squad. Cecil Erb, who played in the Mississippi Valley League last year, as a pitcher and utility man, will be stationed at first base. "Cec" is a hard hitter, and in an emergency can give a good account of himself in the box. It is doubtful, however, if local fans will see him on the mound, for with Vic Krause and Jess Brooks ready to pitch, Manager Ben Long will figure these two quite able to stop the locals.

CLASSY INFELDERS

Two classy infielders can be utilized at second base, Bill Bailey and "Hoot" Gibson. It has not been decided as to who will get the call. Vince Dackwitz, another Tacoma player, well known to local fans, will be stationed at short. Vince has brought several teams to Victoria and is very popular. Dackwitz, his regular position on the Schaffer Box team. Lyphart is considered by many to be the dean of the territory and has the record for throwing arm across the diamond, plus the ability to scoop them out of the dirt, gives this clever player a decided edge.

For outfielders Manager Longo has strength in both offense and defense. Sonny Bailey, one of the greatest fly hawks in the Northwest, will handle centerfield. Bailey covers a world of territory and has the record for long distance throwing in Industrial League circles. Joe Salantino, outfielder of the powerful Italian-American Community League, will be in left field, and Les Garrison, hard-hitting and sure fly snagger, will be in right field. If the locals expect to see some circus catches on Saturday, all the circus has to do is to hit to the outfield and the fans will be rewarded.

Beyond the question of a doubt, the Jack and Jill club is one of the strongest ever to invade Victoria, and a large crowd of fans should be in attendance at each game to welcome this array of Tacoma talent.

City Swimmers Seek Honors In Vancouver Gala

Three Victoria swimmers and one diver will seek honors in the Vancouver Regatta at West Vancouver on Saturday. Denny Walker, Eleanor Peden and Carrie Grey, members of the team coached by Colin McPadden, will compete in the men's and women's fifty and 200-yard free-style events, while Art Stott, Y.M.C.A., will try for the Canadian three-metre board championship.

FRENCH DAVIS CUP TEAM IN BAD POSITION

With Henri Cochet Failing to Show True Form Have No Doubles Combination

Borotra Showing Old Skill and Speed; British Figured Strong Opponents

Paris, July 23.—The composition of the French doubles pair of the team to defend the Davis Cup against England this week-end is causing much speculation as the time for great tennis battle draws near.

Henri Cochet's listless display at Wimbledon is still fresh in memory. Those who have watched the great French player practicing believe he is still feeling the effects of the illness which forced him to retire for awhile. On the other hand, Jean Borotra, considered by the experts to be in fine shape, is revealing all his old skill and speed.

The English team, which reached the finals by defeating the United States three matches to two, consists of Fred Perry, H. W. "Bunny" Austin and George F. Hughes.

Critics here are cautious in their speculations on the outcome, and some of them indeed express the opinion that France faces a stiffer proposition than if they had to face the United States, especially with Tilden removed from the scene.

FORDS WILL MEET TAIYOS TO-NIGHT

Ted Colgate and Ashikawa will be the principals in what should be a pitching duel in the Twilight Baseball League at the Royal Athletic Park this evening when Fords clash with the leading Taiyos at 6:15 o'clock.

Colgate went to the slab for the Elks in the Senior Amateur League early in the season, and is counted one of the best hurlers in the Twilight loop. However, he will have to use lots of smoke to set down the Nippons, who have come through the season so far with only two defeats.

Tommy Drysdale and Wally Simpson will umpire the game.

Weakened Royals In Fine Exhibition To Turn Back Edmonton

Fielding a Team Minus Six of Their Regulars, New Westminster Club, Holders of Canadian Soccer Championship, Defeat C.N.R. 1 to 0 in First Game of Western Semi-finals; Kerr Scores Lone Goal of Match; Play Again To-night; Winner Plays Winnipeg Irish in Western Final

Edmonton, Alta., July 23.—On paper just a shadow of the combination that captured the Canadian title last year, New Westminster Royals are started to-day along the same old trail in much the same way they trod it successfully twelve months back. Royals defeated Edmonton Canadian Nationals here yesterday evening by 1 to 0 and to-night carry the single goal margin into the second game of the series to decide which team meets Winnipeg Irish in the western Canadian final.

Weakened by the loss of a half-dozen stars, five of whom are under suspension by the British Columbia Football Association for failure to appear in a game against the touring English team last month, New Westminster face a stern test to-night. Sanford's great work in goal and the staunch support he received from his backs, Hogg and Makepeace, was responsible for holding the home team scoreless yesterday evening.

But, at the other end, Robson played just as brilliantly in keeping the Royals from beating him more than once, and his support was just as good. TOUGH GAME TO LOSE

Yesterday evening's game was a great one to win and a heart-breaker to lose. The result might just as easily have been in favor of the Nationals, who had wretched luck all evening in front of the Coast eleven's citadel.

Although played in a sweltering heat, the match was productive of some of the fastest football seen here this season, and a good-sized crowd was treated to a lot of end-to-end play that served to maintain interest at the high pitch throughout the ninety minutes.

The contest was clean throughout and well handled by Referee Bill Street of Saskatoon.

The line-ups: Edmonton C.N.R.—Robson, Beldart and Savage; Winters, Orchin and Chrimes; Patterson, Graham, McKay, Logan and Minchin.

New Westminster Royals—Sanford; Hogg and Makepeace; Stobart, Stoddard and Trotter; Kerr, Babcock, Hammond, Turner and Sneddon.

Lacrosse Meeting

A lacrosse meeting will be held to-morrow evening at 8 o'clock at the Y.M.C.A. All teams are requested to have delegates in attendance.

Remy Kremer Takes Hard Luck Player's Role For This Year

Pittsburgh Pirates Hurler Has Pitched 160 Innings and Allowed Only 164 Hits, But Has Won Only 8 Out of Eighteen Games; Pitched Eight Shutouts Yesterday, But Lost 3 to 2 Decision to Brooklyn; Chicago Noses Out Boston in Eleven Innings; Athletics Win Ninth Straight to Increase Margin in American

When the nominations open for the champion hard-luck player of the 1931 baseball season, Remy Kremer of the Pittsburgh Pirates is in line for a good many votes.

He has been pitching a fairly good brand of ball, but the Pirates seldom have backed him up and as a result he is far down the National League list with only six victories against twelve defeats. So far he has pitched 160 innings and allowed 164 hits.

Yesterday he suffered another setback. He pitched eight shutouts in his last five starts, three of them by one-run margins. He pitched eight shutouts in his last five starts, three of them by one-run margins. He pitched eight shutouts in his last five starts, three of them by one-run margins.

Pittsburgh won the first game 10 to 6 when the Brooklyn defense went to pieces in the sixth inning just as Joe Shaute hit a wild streak. The Pirates scored six runs on only one hit.

The Chicago Cubs furnished the real feature for the National League yesterday as they edged out Boston, 5 to 4, in an eleven-inning clash and stepped out to ground a share of the limelight. The Yanks got only an even break with Detroit, losing the first game 3 to 2, as George Uhlir held them to six hits and winning the second, 9 to 5, but Babe Ruth eluded two homers and Lou Gehrig one and Ben Chapman stole his thirty-seventh base, all in the second game.

With the American League race looking more and more like a cut and dried affair, the New York Yankees stepped out to ground a share of the limelight. The Yanks got only an even break with Detroit, losing the first game 3 to 2, as George Uhlir held them to six hits and winning the second, 9 to 5, but Babe Ruth eluded two homers and Lou Gehrig one and Ben Chapman stole his thirty-seventh base, all in the second game.

Philadelphia's Athletics increased their margin to nine full games against their ninth-straight triumph. The Athletics beat the Boston Braves, 7 to 3, in the seventh to beat Cleveland 7 to 3 as Rube Walberg turned in his fourth victory of the season, while the Cincinnati Reds, 9 to 5, defeated the St. Louis Browns. Two Senator moundmen, Crowder and Burke, proved easy for the Browns, yielding three runs and five hits.

Deep in the second division, the Chicago White Sox and Boston Red Sox put on a good scrap, dividing a double bill. Boston took the first game 3 to 2, in a fine pitching duel between Danny McPadden and Red Faber, while Chicago pounded out a 9 to 3 triumph in the second clash as Al Thomas continued the good mound work and Johnny McPadden led the White Sox to a five safe walk-offs.

RISQUE TAKES MATRON EVENT

Mrs. John D. Hertz's Entrance Captures $14,000 Handicap at Arlington Track

Arlington Park, Ill., July 23.—For the second straight year the colors of Mrs. John D. Hertz, of Chicago, wife of the multimillionaire sportsman, flashed to victory in the $14,000 Arlington matron handicap yesterday when Risque, coupled with Valenciennes as an entry, won the rich prize, defeating eight of the outstanding fillies and mares in the country.

Risque, three-year-old daughter of Stimulus-Risky, galloped the mile over a heavy track in 1:42 1-8 to win by a length over Manta, the entry of Brownell Combs, of Lexington, Ky. Cousin Joe, another Kentucky filly, finished a staggering third. Risque paid $8.96 to win, $4,000 to place, and $2.14 to show. She earned $10,880 for Mrs. Hertz, while Manta received $2,000 for running second, and $1,000 went to Cousin Joe for third place.

Mrs. Hertz won the event a year ago with Valenciennes, which finished sixth yesterday.

Montreal Evens Football Series For Eastern Title

Toronto, July 23.—Staging a spectacular uphill battle, Montreal Carleton evens provincial champions, defeated Toronto Scotiabank, 2 to 1, in the second game of the Eastern Canada-Couganaut Cup soccer final here yesterday evening. Carleton earned the triumph, knocking the count on the round about in the first game of the series here on Monday night. McLaine, the Montreal centre forward, netted both goals. The Dominion Football Association has ordered the play-off at Toronto on Saturday.

AMSTERDAM IS DERBY WINNER

Sam Gorbet's Entry Wins
Saskatoon Stakes For Second Year in Succession

Saskatoon, Sask., July 23.—Sam Gorbet's Amsterdam, with Jockey Mattioli up, won the nineteenth annual running of the Saskatoon Derby at the exhibition track yesterday from a field of six of the best long-distance horses in western Canada.

The distance was one mile and one-eighth and the purse $600. Duches of York was second and John Greener, coupled with Amsterdam as the Gorbet entry was third.

The victory marked the second year in succession that the Gorbet stable, with Mattioli riding, has won the feature of the local race meet. Last year Gorbet won with Elviline F.

The Derby attracted the largest crowd of the meet. The second highest in the history of the local track.

Round-for-round description follows:

ROUND ONE.
Sharkey jumped across the ring and drove a left hook to Walker's shoulder and then hugged the little fellow like a big mother bear, squeezing a cub to her body. He drove another left hook to Walker's head and barely missed a trifling right before jumping into another clinch. Walker flew at the big fellow, whaling both hands to the body and crossed his right to the chin. Sharkey grabbed him, stepped back, then drove a short, sharp right to the head as Mickey stormed in again. The little fellow bulleted into a neutral corner and whaled at him with both hands. Sharkey jarred Walker into position and whipped his right flush to Walker's chin. Walker took it gamely, and the bell stopped him charging back.

ROUND TWO.
Sharkey whipped two right hooks to the head and Walker wavered. He danced back and then hurled himself on the Boston heavyweight, flinging both hands. The crowd roared at Mickey's courage as he crowded Sharkey, whipping a neat left hook to the head, driving it under the defensive. Mickey sunk a left hook into Sharkey's body, but Jack caught him coming in again with a sharp right uppercut to the head. Sharkey missed a straight right to the chin, and again Walker got a left and right into the body. Jack drove two hard rights to the ribs as Mickey sailed in again, and they clinched. Sharkey chased Walker into the ropes with two left hooks to the head, but Walker refused to be pushed around, and he whipped his left into Jack's body as the gong rang.

ROUND THREE.
Sharkey came out coolly, carefully jabbing with his left hand. Mickey promptly ducked and came up with a left to the sailor's body. Jack beat the little fellow along the ropes with both hands. Mickey tore back at him furiously, drove him into a corner with lefts and rights to the body, forcing Sharkey to break ground and hold. Sharkey dug a right into the body as they clinched, but again Walker chased him to the ropes with a body attack and smashed Jack full on the chin with a straight right hand. Sharkey backed away cautiously and the crowd roared at the sight of the little man forcing his big adversary to cover. Sharkey bided his time and caught Walker coming in with a straight right to the head. As Mickey charged again Sharkey nailed him with a sharp, short uppercut to the chin, and Walker was slowing down at the bell.

ROUND FOUR.
Sharkey boxed carefully, but he missed with both hands as Walker ducked underneath his long arms. Sharkey tried to straighten Mickey up with jabs for his right cross to the chin, but Mickey ducked and nailed the body and a chopping right to the head. Mickey forced the battle, making Sharkey miss, and he slipped into close quarters to swap again with the sailor in a close body punching exchange. They clinched again, and as Mickey came away he whipped a left hook to the sailor's body. Mickey took a half-dozen left jabs on the head before he whaled into the sailor, and they slugged furiously in a fierce exchange along the ropes, as the crowd bellowed at the hot action. There was slight swelling under Sharkey's eyes at the bell.

ROUND FIVE.
Sharkey came out carefully but he could not hit Walker. Walker bounced around and whipped his left to the head. A short right uppercut knocked Walker off his feet, but he was up without a count. Mickey was caught off balance and was not hurt as he charged into Sharkey. The sailor punched with both hands, drove Mickey across the ring. Walker seemed to be fading and a right ripped a cut on his left eyebrow. Sharkey was on top of him, gaining the upper hand steadily as he whaled at Walker along the ropes. Mickey took a pounding gamely, and Sharkey seemed in no rush to try for a finishing punch.

ROUND SIX.
Sharkey went to his work as though he was boxing in a gymnasium, jabbing his left and crossing his right to Mickey's chin. Walker backed up, shooting his left to the body as he went, and Sharkey followed him, feeding both hands to the head. Mickey rallied along the ropes and tore in with both hands to the body, but another short right opened the cut again. He blinked and brushed the blood away with his glove. Then he stormed into Sharkey with both hands flying to the body. A right bounced off Sharkey's chin on the ropes, but he hammered Walker's head in close with short vicious drives. Slowly and methodically Sharkey jabbed with his left and waited for an opening for his right. It did not come as Walker ducked and placed his left to the body, but there was a stream of blood trickling down Sharkey's left eye at the bell rang.

ROUND SEVEN.
Sharkey boxed his way out carefully again, jabbing with his left to the head, clinching and swapping short punches to the body, when they fell in close. They jolted each other half way round the ring in a series of clinches, and Mickey sneaked his left up three times to the chin as they came away. Sharkey's expression never changed, and he worked like an automaton as he placed Walker's head with lefts, forced him into the ropes and coldly waited for the chance to level the little fellow with his right. Mickey jabbed him out of his composure, but setting on him with both hands, whipping a half a dozen lefts to the body and a hard over-hand right to the chin. Sharkey clinched and a short right to the head knocked Walker's mouthpiece to the canvas just at the bell.

ROUND EIGHT.
Sharkey stuck to his prodding game, waiting to unleash the right hand, but Mickey ducked. A string of bandage leaked out of Sharkey's glove and the referee stopped them to tear it off. They immediately jumped into a slug-ging exchange and the crowd bellowed as Mickey drove his left into Sharkey's body, crossed his right to the chin, and forced the big fellow, looking twice his size, to clinch. Sharkey buried a terrific uppercut under Walker's heart and Mickey danced away cautiously. Sharkey jabbed carefully at Walker's injured eye, but the terrier leaped under Jack's long left to fire lefts to the body and cross his right to the head at the bell.

ROUND NINE.
Mickey slipped in close and drove his short, stubby arms into Sharkey's body. Jack tried to hold him and Walker nailed him with a fierce right uppercut to the chin. Mickey launched a terrific offensive, battering Sharkey's big body with both hands, driving him across the ring with rights to the head, and the crowd roared at the sight of the little fellow out-punching the big man. Sharkey seemed hurt, but took it complacently, went into a jabbing retreat and made Walker come to him. A short right to the head weighted Mickey, but he landed a left hook smack on Sharkey's jaw. The sailor held, and it was an inglorious sight for the big man as little Mickey roughed him at the bell.

ROUND TEN.
Sharkey came out with his right glove over his chin to protect him from Mickey's punishing left hooks. They clinched, and Walker promptly shifted to a straight right that bounced off Sharkey's chin and then thudded into his body. The big fellow fought strictly on the defensive, jabbing perfunctorily with his left as little Mickey worried after him like the toy bulldog they named him, driving into Sharkey with lefts to the body. Walker drove his right to the body and Sharkey missed a right uppercut as a raw amateur would. They went from one clinch to another, with Sharkey doing most of the holding, trying to sneak over his right, with Walker plugging steadily at his body up to the bell.

ROUND ELEVEN.
Sharkey came out and clinched, but he tried to speed up, diving into Mickey with left hooks to the head. Walker tied him up easily and fired both hands to the body as Sharkey tried to get away. Coming out of a clinch, Mickey fired a right uppercut to Sharkey's head, whipped a left hook to the body and forced the big sailor to hold him desperately in a tight embrace. Walker drove Sharkey into the ropes and hammered both hands to the chin as the crowd went mad. Sharkey was caught off balance, leaning way back, and Mickey hammered him viciously with both hands. Sharkey was wavering as he got back to the centre of the ring, but he pulled himself together and laced into Walker with a stream of lusty right-handers to the head. He was fighting bravely, although the crowd still roared for Walker at the bell.

ROUND TWELVE.
Sharkey raced from his corner like a different kind of fighter, the lethargy gone and flashed both hands to Walker's head. Mickey staggered back under the assault and Sharkey was on him again, whaling in with both hands. Mickey rallied and buried a left uppercut into Sharkey's body as the big fellow slowed the pace a bit. Sharkey popped Walker's head back with a left and nailed him on the chin with a fine right. Walker sparred as Sharkey was on him again, firing both hands. Another right to the chin set Mickey to swinging badly, but Sharkey held him as they fell into a clinch on the ropes. He shot Walker's head back with a right uppercut and then slowed down again, content to clinch up to the bell.

ROUND THIRTEEN.
They danced out, fell into a clinch, and Sharkey smashed both hands to the head and Mickey swung for the body. Sharkey set Walker up against the ropes and opened at his injured eye again with a savage right cross. The blood bothered Walker, and he rubbed the eye constantly. Sharkey ripped a left hook to the head and pounded on Walker's chin with a right as they went into a clinch. Mickey snapped the sailor's head back with a right uppercut but Sharkey landed a right hook and another right, making a mess of Mickey's left eye. In close, Sharkey hammered with his right to the same side of Walker's head. The crowd boomed as Sharkey came to his corner.

ROUND FOURTEEN.
Walker charged in with a left and right to the head, forcing Sharkey to step back and the crowd howled in glee as the tide of battle changed constantly. Walker sunk both hands into Sharkey's body again but Jack poked steadily for the harassed side of Walker's face. As Sharkey tried to measure him, Walker flung an over-hand right to the head and stepped in with a left to the chin. He was charging and slugging at Sharkey valiantly as the bell rang.

ROUND FIFTEEN.
They shook hands, and promptly fell into a clinch. Walker stepped in close and ripped a left and right to the head. He drove Sharkey to the ropes with a body barrage and the big fellow clinched. Mickey fired a right to the head that seemed to infuriate Sharkey and he tore into the little bulldog hammering both hands to the head. Referee Donovan warned Sharkey that a punch was low and he promptly drove Walker across the ring with a right to the head. Walker threw a wild right and Sharkey beat him to the punch with a savage right uppercut to the chin. Walker reeled under another series of rights that tore his left eyebrow wide open. Walker was bleeding badly but he dived in a final left at the bell. Walker tottered to his corner in bad shape, his face covered with blood.

Buy a shirt with that $3 you save

This is merely a suggestion. Spend the money any way you wish. But remember that Listerine Tooth Paste saves $3 yearly for each member of the family.

A million men choose this Tooth Paste

Listerine Tooth Paste gets results. It does its job quickly—thoroughly—permanently.

Tobacco stains disappear like magic. Tartar is removed in a jiffy, and discolorations from other sources soon vanish. The teeth whiten, the enamel acquires a lasting brilliance, because the teeth are cleaner, healthier than ever before.

The cleansing agents in Listerine Tooth Paste are not like those in the ordinary dentifrice. They are hard enough to clean perfectly, and remove food particles from crevices between the teeth. But they are so mild that they can do no mischief to the all-important enamel surface. The refreshing effect of Listerine is also a characteristic of this dentifrice, made and sponsored by the makers of Listerine itself.

This tooth paste sells for 25¢, just about half of what you usually pay for a quality dentifrice. The 25¢ you save each year is worth knowing about, and worth having, too. You can figure on an equal saving for everyone in your household. Lambert Pharmaceutical Company, Toronto, Ontario.

NEWS IN BRIEF

Convicted of driving to the common danger, in an accident at the corner of View and Quadra Streets, J. Crause was fined $20 in City Police Court this morning.

The Real Estate Board of Victoria will meet at luncheon in Spencer's private dining-room to-morrow to hear a report on the complete rental survey plans for the Sooke outing and arrangements made to add new members will also be under discussion.

Lucy N. C. Robinson, manager of the public relations department of the National Savings and Loan Association of Spokane, will speak over Radio Station KHQ, Spokane, at 9:30 o'clock Sunday morning on the trip she has just made up the West Coast aboard the Ss. Princess Norah.

Swearing-in of British Columbia's fourteenth Lieutenant-Governor, J. W. Fordham Johnson, will be done by E. J. Lemire, clerk of the Canadian Privy Council, who will leave Ottawa for Victoria shortly, bringing the new governor's commission.

Band concerts given by the 16th Canadian Scottish, under the baton of James Miller, and the Victoria Fire Department, under Al Prescott, at Beacon Hill and Central Parks respectively, yesterday afternoon, drew large crowds to the two recreation grounds. Classical airs given by the two organizations were greatly appreciated.

The city department has been kept busy during the last few days as a result of the hot weather. Five fires were attended to yesterday, and shortly after midnight a beach fire broke out near the corner of Cook and Dallas Road and kept a crew busy until 8 o'clock this morning. A roof fire at 831 Blomfield Street and a small blaze at 831 Fingard Street were also attended to-day.

"I have not been working since January until I got a job on Monday, and I've got my mother to support," said D. Smythe when asking time to pay a fine of $10 in the City Police Court this morning for driving to the common danger on Yates Street. He was driving a car hired by "some other fellows," he said when Magistrate Jay queried him on the ownership of the car he was driving. The court gave him one week in which to pay the fine.

At a recent meeting of the directors of the Canadian Penitentiaries Association final arrangements were made for an excursion to Newcastle Island, on Wednesday, August 5, leaving here at 9 o'clock in the morning. After a four-hour sail the party will arrive at Newcastle Island at 1 o'clock. After spending the day on the island, the party will leave at 6 o'clock, arriving home at 10:30 o'clock. An orchestra will be in attendance. Tickets may be purchased at C.P.R. offices.

Judge H. S. Lampman this morning granted leave to the Crown to amend the grounds of an appeal against the conviction of Frank Pace, now serving a sentence at Oakalla for an infraction of the Excise Act, in connection with having a still in his possession in the basement of his house on Shelbourne Street. The application was made by R. A. Wootton. Notice of the appeal had been given the accused, but notice of change in the grounds of appeal was not given until after the appeal was notified would not prejudice Pace, counsel assured the court.

Application for an injunction against locking up to-day as the result of continued post-war pensions before the pensions tribunal sitting under Col. L. H. Mackenzie, D.S.O., and Col. C. Peck, V.C. Detailed evidence from doctors was taken on the claim of a returned man, formerly from Calgary, who asked for a pension because he said the war had given him epileptic fits. The judges decided they had not got a clear picture of the man's case, after it was brought out by the court's own expert medical testimony that, although the man had a predisposition before the war to epilepsy, it might not have shown up if it had not been for the stress and strain of war. As for the right to a pension on the grounds the man did not feel well enough to work now, Dr. Ingram reported: "There is nothing to prevent him from doing laborer's work, but I don't think he is anxious to work."

"Well, human nature, it seems, doesn't like us to work," said Col. Peck. The colonel pointed out that if the man got a diagnosis of epilepsy it would likely improve his chances for a pension.

A Scoteman claimed a pension, explaining that he had had cramp since he was two years old and had attended army sick parades during the war while overseas. The court is looking up his medical record.

Among the other grounds on which pensions were applied for to-day were chronic bronchitis, chest weakness, loss of vitality and accidents in France.

MAKES APPEAL FOR BARNARDO WELFARE WORK

Rotary Club Asked to Assist Institution Caring For Thousands of Children

J. N. Stephen, Traveling Secretary, Outlines Activities of Institution

An appeal for assistance in carrying on the inspired work of the Dr. Barnardo Homes, child welfare institution of London, Eng., and the graphic story of the pioneer work of the renowned charitable institution, was voiced by J. N. Stephen, traveling secretary, before the Rotary Club at its luncheon in the Empress Hotel to-day.

Mr. Stephen sketched the activities of his organization and spoke briefly on the ideals of the founder, telling the clubmen of various pathetic incidents encountered in ministering to the needs of destitute British children. In the objectives of Dr. Barnardo, one of the finest and greatest workers in child welfare, were found aims similar to those of the Rotary Club, with its motto of "Service Above Self," Mr. Stephen said.

From the cradle to the grave, the Barnardo Homes cared for its inmates. In the system of boarding out children without parents, Dr. Barnardo was a pioneer.

Through inspiration he had applied a plan in which young children were sent into private homes up to the time they were seven or eight years old, enjoying real home life.

But for those children, who were unable to find these homes and were forced to remain in the public homes, Dr. Barnardo found the institution too much of a barren system. To overcome this he established cottage homes. In an unusual manner the cottage home scheme was put into practice by the assistance of men and women of some means, wishing to help the homeless children.

OPEN TO ALL

In the "Ever Open Door," a home without restriction as to age, nationality or color, Dr. Barnardo had done splendid work, Mr. Stephen said. Once, through lack of accommodation, one child had been unable to gain admission and had sought shelter in an empty barrel, where he was later found dead. Since that time, none who sought shelter had been refused, the speaker declared.

Through Dr. Barnardo's system children numbering up to 40,000 had been sent out to different parts of the Empire to become good citizens. When in Vancouver he had met several of the boys who had been in the institution, but who were now successful business men.

No denominational influences were seen in the institution since Dr. Barnardo had made all applicants welcome to his home. Mr. Stephen referred to Howard Williams, who, inspired like Dr. Barnardo, had given not only time and energy, but vast sums of money to the institution.

DONATIONS

Regarding donations, he stated less than 7 cents out of every dollar given, was absorbed in salaries, the majority of the staff working time, none who were not doing the home provide for orphans, but also children whose parents were unable to care for them. "It is our work to try to cure the ill, uplift the fallen, strengthen the little crooked limbs, give sight to little blind eyes and give the underprivileged a chance in life," he said.

In closing, he asked the Rotary Club to form a committee to secure funds for the work that had to be carried on in England before the children could be sent to Canada.

"Anything you can give to aid child welfare will be returned a hundred-fold," he concluded.

CANNED FRUIT EXPORTS

Experts of canned fruits are recommended by the department to have sugar declaration forms accompanying shipments to the United Kingdom, in order to receive preference on sugar duty. Such certificates show the sugar content and that the sugar is of British origin.

ROTARIANS TO PAY VISIT TO PORT ANGELES

Members of the Victoria Rotary Club will journey to Port Angeles for a joint meeting with the branch in that town as well as delegates from Port Townsend and Sequim next Wednesday. It was announced at the club's luncheon in the Empress Hotel to-day.

Delegates from Duncan and Nanaimo are also expected to make the trip. John Johnson has been appointed chairman of the programme committee and will arrange for an entertainment from Victoria talent. Arrangements for a sports meet, in which Victoria will meet a combined team from the other clubs, was also announced. The local softball team will meet a nine representing the rest.

BUCHANAN BOYS ON ANNUAL TOUR

Noted Detroit, With Party of Twenty Boys, Will Be in Victoria August 7

George E. Buchanan of Detroit will arrive in Vancouver on Saturday with a party of twenty boys, on the ninth annual "On-to-Alaska-with-Buchanan" tour. To-day the party left Lake Louise, in the Rocky Mountains, and the itinerary calls for arrival at Vancouver at 8 o'clock Saturday morning.

On Saturday night the Buchanan boys will sail by Canadian Pacific steamer for northern British Columbia and Alaska.

On August 7, at 2:30 p.m., the party will pass through Victoria en route to Seattle, and will arrive back at Detroit via Chicago on August 14.

BOYS PAY THIRD

Each of the boys, under a plan originated by Mr. Buchanan nine years ago, has earned $125, one-third of the expenses of the trip. Each of the boys' parents pay a third, while Mr. Buchanan advances the other third. The money advanced by Mr. Buchanan is to be paid back "some day" at the will of the boy, to be put back in a fund so that another boy may be enabled to make the tour.

PAN FOR GOLD

Features of this year's trip include a day's stay at Atlin, the British outpost on the Yukon boundary, where the boys will pan for placer gold. On the homeward trip they will put in a day at Arlee, Mont., where they will witness the great pow-wow of the Blackfoot Indians.

Besides Mr. Buchanan, the boys are accompanied on the present tour by G. G. Spries, Detroit, and R. A. Waugh, Chicago, and at Vancouver this week and they will be joined by Miss Louise Dunbar, and her brother, Carl, members of the Juvenile Band of Vancouver.

The boys making the tour are: Walter A. Crow, Stanley A. Daniels, Richard T. Deiner, Rex D. Hammond, Bruce P. Hayden, Robert Heald, William D. McKee, Lloyd R. Silver, Ernest Silverthorn, Fletcher E. Weathers and Leonard L. Winter.

During the tour the boys will cover over 8,000 miles by rail and steamer.

RAYNOR GUILTY, BUT SENTENCE IS SUSPENDED

Judge Lampman Finds "Greatest Provocation" For Assault on L. E. Smith

Howard H. Raynor was found guilty of assaulting Leslie Edward Smith in the early hours of June 27, and was given suspended sentence by Judge Lampman in the County Court this morning, after W. C. Moresby, K.C., prosecutor, had recommended that course as acceptable to the Crown. The accused was required to give an undertaking of good behavior for six months. No defence evidence was offered.

Dr. Charles A. Watson testified to treating the complainant and chief witness for wounds on the head which had been caused by a blow with something heavy.

Smith testified that he was a garage employee and had been driving on Douglas Street, shortly after midnight on June 27, when he picked up Raynor and his wife. He had driven them to the Scott Building, thence to the Leland Apartments, where Raynor had alighted. He had then driven Mrs. Raynor back to the Scott Building, waited while she went in to see her son, and had then taken her to her room to the grounds of the old jail, off Ross Street.

The couple had then changed from the front seat to the rear seat, where he had slept in the corner, being tired. Mrs. Raynor had leaned her back against him and was still talking when he dozed off.

CRASH WOKE HIM UP

He had been awakened by a crash and a scream, to find Raynor coming over the front seat at him. While he and Raynor struggled Mrs. Raynor got out of the car, but returned a moment later with blood on her face. Her clothing was disordered. He had then agreed to drive the pair to their home and was hit three blows by Raynor from the rear seat, as he was getting the car in gear.

Cross-examined by H. A. Beckwith, counsel for Raynor, the witness denied that he had been in the car at the time of the assault, but admitted having been in the same place with the woman on other occasions.

Asked why he had gone driving, when tired enough to sleep, Smith said: "I would have been home had Raynor and his wife got out of my car at the Scott Block, as they should have done."

H. E. G. Smith, milkman, told of meeting the injured man, whose face was covered with blood.

Constable Woodburn testified as to arresting the accused at the Leland Apartments and stated that the grounds of the old jail had been examined. Broken glass from the damaged car had been found but no rock discovered.

When pronouncing suspended sentence Judge Lampman said the evidence of the complaining witness showed the accused was no doubt under "the greatest provocation."

LIFE INSURANCE MEN'S MEETING ENDS FRIDAY

Balance of El Capitan Club's Visit Will Be Devoted to Sightseeing and Golf

Business sessions of the El Capitan Club of the California State Life Insurance Company, in convention here, came to an end this morning and until the delegates leave aboard the regular steamer for Seattle to-morrow afternoon, they will enjoy the attractions of Victoria.

This afternoon motor trips to Butchart's gardens and the Malahat had been arranged for the visiting insurance writers. To-morrow a golf tournament is scheduled, concluding in time for the delegates to catch the boat.

A banquet was held at the convention headquarters, Empress Hotel, yesterday evening with J. Roy Kruse, president, in the chair. During the afternoon addresses were given by H. H. Buckman, vice-president and attorney of the company; H. C. Borstoff, comptroller and treasurer; Mead W. Harman, Miss Stella Gibbs, A. H. Hanrattson, George P. Price, Herbert Atwater, F. J. At this morning's session papers on the general topic of life insurance and selling were presented. Members of the El Capitan Club are known as the "top-notch producers" of the company. Each delegate has created business during the year with a total of $4,000 in paid up business or $125,000 worth of insurance. This entitles them to a trip to the convention, expenses paid, as well as bonuses, which were distributed yesterday afternoon.

FLOWERS WILL FEATURE SHOW

Fine Blooms Expected to Be on Display in Horticultural Exhibition July 31

There is every indication that the Victoria Horticultural Society will have on display a magnificent showing of cut blooms in addition to the usual showing of potted plants, fruits and vegetables at its summer show in the Chamber of Commerce July 31. It is expected that by the opening day of the show sweet peas and gladioli will be at their best. Classes for even the smallest grower have been arranged so that they may exhibit. The society's challenge trophies, for which there is generally very keen competition, will again be given to the floral displays, one for cut flowers and the other for the potted plants. Each group is allowed thirty-six square feet, and will be judged on variety, quality and artistic arrangement. For the grower not having sufficient to fill the space,

To-day's Grain Markets

WINNIPEG

(By Logan & Bryan)
Winnipeg, July 23.—Wheat: another quiet and featureless day in the wheat market. Prices opened steady with Liverpool about as due, but there was no buying support, and with a little wheat coming out from tired holders, prices declined about 1/4 of a cent, a slight rally taking place later, but sufficient to lift the market out of the daily bid price. There was no outside interest shown. All markets are just steady, but export sales continue extremely tight.

New York advices stated the foreign demand for North American wheat was confined to a little old and new crop hard winters, and a few loads of Manitoba, the latter being confirmed here. World's supply of breadstuffs compiled by daily trade bulletin shows total July 1, 1931, at 444,493,000 bushels, as compared with 490,039,000 June 1, 1931, and 379,279,000 bushels July 1, 1930. Russia is pressing wheat, and sold some spot to the United Kingdom this morning.

President Hoover announced that the London conference had laid a sound foundation for establishment of stability in Germany. There was no special interest in the local cash market except an inquiry for some toughs at a fraction better, otherwise the spreads were unchanged. Nothing new in the flow situation.

Weather is decidedly hot over North America, spring wheat belt, also in Kansas. Crop news from Russia is much mixed, but evidently yields in southern areas are satisfactory. General news continues more or less pessimistic as regards wheat prices. Winnipeg futures closed 1/4 to 3/4 lower.

Coarse grain—These markets continued dull and featureless with the local pit trade very small. There was a small export business confirmed in barley with the domestic demand very quiet.

Corn closed 1/4 to 1/2 lower, barley 1/4 higher to 1/2 lower and rye 1/4 to 1/2 lower.

Flax—Featureless, but steady. Closing prices 1/4 higher to 1/2 lower.

Liverpool due unchanged to 1/2 higher, based on Winnipeg.

The Melody Girl

By RUTH DEWEY GROVES
(Copyright, 1931, by NEA Service)

All at once Beryl drew away from the man beside her. She was out of her depth and knew it.

Prentiss heard her laugh, and turned to look at her.

"I'm a little better," she said to him. "I was trying to vamp you."

"Yes, I know," Prentiss said. "Was I that crude?" Beryl asked.

Prentiss did not answer at once. Beryl was a new kind of girl to him. Not nice, but not a girl he'd ever known, but astonishingly different. She brought new thoughts to his mind.

"No," he said slowly. "I wouldn't say you were crude unless you judged you by crude standards. I should say that, without knowing it, you were being extremely subtle."

"I'm afraid," Beryl admitted, "that I don't understand."

"I'm not sure that I understand myself," he told her. "There's an idea among certain girls that they're an obligation to live up to all the things that have been said against the youth of to-day. When they go about it, it's something more than hammer and tongs, tooth and nail. It's... well, never mind."

He paused and Beryl said: "Go on. Shouldn't I deserve it?"

"They'd laugh at you," Prentiss declared, "but I've a notion that none of them ever get near the real thing, that thing that figured in the history of great loves. There must have been subtlety in that."

Beryl, embarrassed, attempted a joke. "Slow, but subtle," she said with an awkward little laugh. It was coming to her now, the reaction of her behavior. Fighting impulses had been a life-long habit with her. She wondered why she had given in to these two—first to act as she had and then to confess her error. Couldn't one be a fool about honesty?

Prentiss spoke, as though he had read her mind.

"The queer part of this is that you did it," he said. "Why did you do it? The honesty of her nature, which Beryl had just been questioning, was still in control. It dictated her answer. "Because I often want to do things that I won't let myself," she said.

"Was it just an impulse? Didn't you have a reason?" he pressed.

Suddenly Beryl became suspicious of him. "Say," she asked, "are you trying to analyze me or something?"

Prentiss laughed. "You're right," he admitted. "I have been studying psychology these past two years. But you'll have to admit that I have a personal interest in this case."

"Oh, then, I'm a case!"

"You make a very good study. You're so darned honest. Oh no, you wouldn't either. You're not complex enough. You're as clear and definite as a blue flame!"

Beryl made a face. "You mean you can see right through me," she interpreted and smiled at the thought. Imagine the shock it would be to him to trace her impulse in question to its source and find that it began with another man! He was far more attractive to her without all concealment.

Prentiss's next remark gave her a jolt. "Of course you're struggling with obstacles between yourself and some man you're interested in," he asserted calmly. "If you thought necking a pleasure you'd have begun it long ago when you were five, say."

"My goodness!" Beryl gasped.

"You're not mercenary," he went on, ignoring her exclamation. "I looked for that at first. You weren't after dad's money and I'm sure you're not in love with me. You don't even need me as a stepping stone to success in a career. You had good taste before I met you. That leaves only a man."

Beryl wanted to giggle. She thought of him talking like this to Irene. She did know something of psychology at least that was the science of the human mind. But Irene, who never read a book! Irene had received a carnival doll as a gift once with a card that read: "Because you have a book."

She looked at Prentiss and announced: "You're a lucky boy. No girl will ever fool you."

"It could be done," he said dubiously, "but I don't think it will be."

Beryl settled back in her seat, a strange smile upon her lips. Prentiss wasn't quite a fool, either, she thought. "Life itself is something of a jokester," she said softly.

Prentiss, whose thoughts had been far afield, started. "What?" he asked. Beryl did not answer. They had arrived at the cottage on the South Shore and some of Prentiss's friends had come out to greet them. Beryl was welcomed, literally with open arms. It was known she would sing for them. She had no more private conversation with Prentiss that night. When they left they had another girl with them, a girl who lived on the North Shore. Something had happened to her escort. Beryl didn't know exactly what. She only knew that their hostess had asked Prentiss if he would mind dropping the other girl at her home. This girl was quiet on the drive and Beryl sensed that she was emotionally upset. Beryl was glad of her presence.

Had Prentiss forgotten Irene? Beryl wondered because when they had danced together at the party he had seemed just as he was before seeing her sister. She had rather dreaded the drive home with him. It might be that second thought on her conduct earlier in the evening would give him a new set of ideas about her. He might attempt experimentation.

At last they were in her mind when she dressed that evening was gone, gone for good. In its place was a high, fine feeling of escape. Better to be again living for Tommy. There, in the world that she had created for just the two of them, dream world though it was, she was safe. Going back to it she felt that she had new faith in herself. She didn't like having her mind cluttered up with changing emotions. It was painful to be hopelessly in love, but it was a familiar pain, a dear pain, if there can be such a thing.

She was glad not to have to talk about herself with Prentiss and glad to have a third person present. She wondered what would happen when the other girl left them. Would Prentiss follow up whatever had come into his mind at the party and try to make love to her?

No, it seemed that he had been merely caught in the feeling of the moment—which was one of adulation. Beryl felt a touch of scorn toward the young man. Still his was a natural attitude and he had been honest as well as extremely decent not to take advantage of her own letdown.

When they reached her home and Prentiss said he was thirsty she felt that it was not a ruse to stay with her longer, so she let him come in. There asleep on the sofa was Irene.

CHAPTER XX

Irene, waiting up for her? Beryl looked at her sister, a lovely creature in the (nervous of her) seashell pink lounging pyjamas that were Beryl's. The flood of soft light that came from a golden shade was flattering to Irene. Beryl turned to Prentiss with a feeling that she ought to shout a warning to him. Of course he could see for himself, but he couldn't read the signals as Beryl did. He would see only the golden hair shining in the soft light, the childlike pose of innocent sleep.

Prentiss wouldn't know that the lounging suit was taken without permission from its owner and that the wearer had waited up for her sister for the express purpose of meeting him or, failing that, to talk about him.

Of course, Beryl realized she herself could only guess at what was in Irene's mind, but she knew her sister very well. She felt she had made a fair guess.

Beryl wanted to let Irene sleep but even as she put a silencing finger to her own lips Irene stirred and opened her eyes. Seeing Prentiss standing there, she sat up. Irene sat up in pretended embarrassment. There was no reason for genuine embarrassment. Her costume was complete with its velvet coat and she knew her sister would understand that if she had not hoped to be caught in the pyjamas she would not have worn the coat on a hot summer night.

Irene had learned through painful experience not to face Beryl's cool grey eyes when she was engaged in tricks. There was something about Beryl which made tricks, even the most commonly practiced ones, seem cheap and tawdry. She wasn't going to have her plans spoiled by Beryl's smile and sweetly and apologetically at Prentiss.

"I wanted to hear about the party," she said, in the voice of a Cinderella who had no part in her own life.

"Do you want a drink, Prentiss?" Beryl asked in a matter-of-fact tone. Prentiss answered vaguely. "A drink? Oh yes, yes, of course. I was thirsty, wasn't I?"

"May I have something too?" Irene pouted, still the little sister who'd been suppressed if other people had their way. That was the idea she hoped Prentiss would get. Irene had learned that most men enjoy being protectors, or imagining themselves such. She was young enough to look helpless and appealing.

Strange that little shallow-minded Irene should know so much more about men than her brilliant sister. Was it instinctive knowledge that comes only to primitive minds? Or was it that much talked of woman's intuition? Beryl wondered as she made her way to the kitchen for the refreshments what Prentiss would say if she were to ask him about this.

Over the mixing of the cool drinks she smiled suddenly and said to herself: "Beryl, don't be a cynic. There must be men in the world somewhere who don't care for baby dolls at any stage of the game. Maybe Irene is just clever enough to pick her men."

Then she remembered having heard someone say that youth is intolerant but that its earnestness is necessary to the movement of the world. Well, maybe she could get a jump on life by practicing tolerance before she grew old. Maybe she wasn't justified in setting her own standards for other people to follow. Maybe Tommy wasn't weak in loving Irene. It wasn't Prentiss, it was Tommy she was judging.

"How about it, partner?" she said softly aloud. "If I were forty would I be able to admit that possibly I'm wrong?"

But she wasn't forty and when she went back to the living-room and saw Irene curled up in a picturesque pose in one corner of the sofa while Prentiss sat beside her (like a charmed bird, Beryl thought), all her philosophizing vanished. Her disgust welled up stronger than ever, and she was sorry that she had brought the third glass for Irene.

The little mixx should be spanked and put to bed if she got what she deserved, Beryl thought. But Irene was years too old for that and one had to treat her as a grown-up.

Prentiss drank the lemon-mint and ate the thin brown cookies. Beryl knew that it might as well have been elder and doughnuts for all the difference he'd have known.

She wished he would go, for she was very tired. The party had been a strenuous one for her. Other guests had walked by twos on the adjacent beach or sat in dim corners of the big porch that fronted the ocean, but she had kept indoors singing and dancing.

Her success, professional and social, was in no wise bore some to Beryl. She liked people, and she liked being in a crowd because in spite of her directness she maintained a "protecting" reserve.

She sighed audibly and Irene had the impudence to tell her she should go to bed if she were tired.

Beryl wanted to answer: "And leave you alone with Prentiss?" Instead she said: "We're all going to bed. Prentiss got your hat. This is an old-fashioned household and not a speakeasy. You may sleep until noon to-morrow but no so late as he!"

Irene sat up in anger. "How can you be so rude?" she flamed.

Prentiss laughed. "Beryl's right," he said apologetically. "I only came in for a drink, but..." His voice drifted away while his eyes lingered on Irene's face as though to say it, beauty could be blamed for his delay.

Irene pouted. "I'm awfully sorry not to hear the rest of that story about the time you were robbed of your father's payroll," she said regretfully. "Where's your just scared to death?"

Idiot! Beryl thought. Irene had only to look at Prentiss to know he wouldn't be "scared to death" of anything. But then, of course, her question would give him a chance to declare himself on the subject. What more could a man want?

"I'm getting to be a cynic," she said to herself.

Why hadn't Prentiss told her that story? Well, she wouldn't be "scared to death" of anything herself. Maybe it's not fun to tell a person like herself a hero story. Maybe it's only interesting with someone who will say, "Oh, my, how wide, round eyes and a round, rosy mouth."

Maybe that was why—because she didn't have a wide, rosy mouth—so that Prentiss had not gone on with his story after she came back with the refreshment tray. Oh well, she cared only because Tommy was like that, too.

Beryl said good night to Prentiss with a detachment of mind that pleased Irene, who thought it was due to pique. Then she went directly to her own room, refusing to gossip with Irene about the party and Prentiss Gaylord. Thank heaven, there was one real blessing the old house afforded. That was a room of one's own. Beryl thought, as she closed the door behind her, that she'd turn tiger cat if forced to share a room with Irene.

BEDTIME STORY

Uncle Wiggily's Sunshine

(By HOWARD R. GARIS)

Baby Bunty, the little orphan rabbit child who lived with Uncle Wiggily in the hollow stump bungalow, pressed her little pink nose against the window glass as hard as she could.

"Why are you doing that, Bunty?" asked Nurse Jane Puzzy Wuzzy.

"I want to see if it has stopped raining," answered Bunty.

"I guess it's never going to stop raining so we can go out and play and have fun," sighed Bunty.

"I'm tired of that rain!" said Jangle, who was Jingle's twin sister.

Both little rabbit girls spoke rather crossly.

"It has rained a long time," agreed Nurse Jane. "I seem a long time since we have seen the jolly, yellow sunshine."

"Maybe I can make it stop raining," said Bunty, who was watching the wet drops chase themselves down the window glass.

"How can you stop the rain?" asked Nurse Jane, who with her brothers also had to stay in the bungalow because of the weather.

"I'll say a little verse," Bunty answered. So she recited this, which many of you, I bet, have heard her say when you wanted to see the sunshine. Bunty said: "Rain, rain, go away! Don't come back for many a day! Rain, go away and send the sun! Rain, go away and send the sun! Rain, go away and send the sun!" Bunty kept her eyes shut as she said this, but when she opened them again it was raining harder than before.

"See! It didn't do a bit of good!" cried Nurse Jane, who was Bunty's brother. "Nobody can make it stop raining."

"Perhaps not," spoke a new voice and there stood Uncle Wiggily, who had been shaving up in the bath room and who had slipped down the stairs listening in time to hear this talk. "But I can make sunshine," he said.

"Do you mean you can make sunshine now when it's raining?" asked Bunty.

"Of course I can!" replied Mr. Longears with a smile and such a jolly twinkle of his pink nose that already Bunty seemed brighter, though it was dark, gloomy and wet outside. "It will make you bunnies happier," he went on. "I'll fill this room full of sunshine for you. Then you may play some games and pretend it isn't raining outside. And by that time the rain may really stop."

"Oh, go on, Uncle Wiggily! Make some sunshine for us!" begged Baby Bunty.

"Well, all of you go upstairs while I do the trick," Uncle Wiggily said. "I'm not allowed to do it if any one looks at me."

"This is going to be good," whispered Bunty.

"It is if he does it!" whispered Bunty.

"Won't it be lovely to see the sunshine again?" said Jangle.

The boy and girl rabbits hurried out of the big room where they had been sitting and grumbling about the rain.

U.S. LABOR HEAD FOR CANCELLATION OF WAR DEBTS

Washington, July 23.—Extension of reparations and debt holiday payments beyond the one-year moratorium was advocated yesterday by William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, as a means of restoring world economic.

Green said he believed reparations and war debts should be cancelled, "so far as it is practicable," adding that he felt the one-year holiday only postponed "an evil day of reckoning."

The federation president said he spoke as an individual, adding the matter never had been taken up officially by the federation.

He added he felt that as a matter of course any substantial, permanent lessening of debt payments would release an enormous amount of buying power.

The federation president said several of the major industries of the United States were adhering in the main to the administration's stand against wage cuts. He named the anthracite, railroad, building and steel industries.

On the other hand, he said, there had been considerable wage cutting in the textile, bituminous coal, boot and shoe industries, and among office workers and miscellaneous industries.

Why Are Girl Babies Less Desired Than Boy Babies?
Girl Who Would Marry a Man Wedded to His Art

DEAR MISS DIX—Why are baby girls at a discount? Why is the girl baby always welcomed in a family with more or less regret? We have recently lived a dear, sweet little baby girl and neither my husband nor myself sorry, yet every one who comes to us exclaims: "Weren't you disappointed that it was a girl?" Why did we be? MRS. R. E. D.

Answer—I think most mothers are sorry when their babies are girls out of sheer sympathy and because they realize how much harder life is on women than it is on men. Perhaps at the moment, remembering the agony they have just been through, they could weep over the tiny mites on their breast, knowing that they, too, will have to go through the same suffering.

But, of course, the real reason why baby girls are preferred to girl babies is why everybody congratulates the proud parents of a son and secretly laments with them on the dirty work the stork played them in bringing them a girl back to the times when brute strength was the most desirable quality a human being could have. Then a boy who could hunt and bring in food or who could fight and defend the flocks and herds was an asset to a family, while a girl was only another mouth to feed.

Later on sons were desired because they were the ones who brought fame and fortune to a family and gave it a place in the sun. It was to the sons that the parents looked for support in their old age, and to helpless daughters who could not even support themselves. And, of course, it was the sons who carried on the name and gave a sort of immortality to a family. We still have that feeling, and that is why boy babies get a more cordial welcome than girl babies do.

But, as a matter of fact, none of these reasons for preferring boy babies girl babies hold water in these days when most girls are just as good men their brothers, and sometimes better. The average girl goes to work now the same age that a boy does, and if she does not make as much money he does she takes far more of it home and is a greater help to her parents. The average family where all the children work it is the girls who fix the house and buy new furniture and dress up mother and father, and not their earnings for the communal good, while brother is spending his having a good time.

And it is daughters that parents depend upon in their old age. It is always to one of the daughters that father and mother go to live when their home is broken up. More men are supporting their wives' parents than are supporting their own.

Furthermore, if girls do not have more affection for their parents than boys do, they at least show it more. There are thousands of busy business men who never write home to their father and mother, or go to see them, send them any little remembrance, but there are mighty few women, no matter how busy and hard worked they are, who do not find time to write me every week, and who do not continually give their parents some evidence of their affection. There is no truer saying than that "my son is my life" until he gets him a wife, but my daughter is my daughter all of her life.

And as for bringing distinction on a family a daughter does it perhaps oftener than a boy because she not only has a chance of achieving fame and fortune herself, but of marrying some rich or famous man. Many a family lives in luxury because Mary married a millionaire, or thanks in the reflected glory of a son-in-law.

And a queer thing about this matter is that while probably most parents given a choice, would ask for a boy if he was their own flesh and blood, when it comes to adopting a child the great majority of foster parents pick girl babies. All orphan asylums find that there is a greater demand for girl babies than they can supply, while boy babies are a drug on the market, so to speak. PUNY, 1931-1932 DOROTHY DIX.

DEAR MISS DIX—I am in love with a man who never tells me that he cares for me. His whole heart and soul are bound up in art, and he is that a woman could never be happy married to him, as his husband, only for it. What shall I do? TWENTY-TWO.

Answer—Leave him to his art. Read what Mrs. Carlyle says about marrying a genius. No men are such cold and unsatisfactory husbands as those who are wedded to their art and you will be perfectly foolish to marry this man who is wiser than you and who knows that he would forget you are alive in pursuit of his career. Just a good, ordinary, untemperamental man makes the best husband.

Down to the Ocean Bottom

Down, down, down, toward the bottom of the deep blue sea! Off the coast of the Bermuda Islands, in a steel ball weighing two tons, to men made a daring trip in the year of 1930. They were William Beebe, the famed scientist, and a companion named Barton.

A glimpse of life near the bottom of the deep sea.

If the ball had been made of nothing but steel, the adventures would have been unable to see anything on their way down; but there was a small window, six inches wide, through which they could look at the region through which they passed. The window was not made of glass—it was of transparent quartz. Glass would have broken under severe pressure.

At a depth of 400 feet, they saw a "parrot-fish" upside down in mid-air, and a school of pilot fish and e-shooting squids. Beebe and Barton continued their descent until they were 1,426 feet below the surface of the sea. They saw hatchet-fish, trigger-fish, bonitos and baby eels. A telephone wire extended up the cable by which they had been lowered, and they were able to direct their journey until they were fully lifted back to the surface.

Describing other dips into the sea, which were not to such great depths, he wrote: "I could distinctly see various kinds of coral and fish. I even saw an amazing exchange of courtesy, one which I had observed many times when lying near shore. The giant parrot-fish brooded on hard coral as a horse ears off mouthfuls of grass. "After feeding, when the teeth and jaws and scales are covered with debris, the parrot-fish 'upends' in mid-air and holds itself motionless while a school of wrasse, all tiny in comparison, rush from all sides and begin cleaning up the head of the big fish." Neither Beebe nor any other man has gone down to the deepest parts of

Travel Hint

If you have a dark frock with white finger tips which you intend wearing while traveling this summer, make a substitute set of polka dots with the background the color of your outfit, or else a plaid or other figured silk set. You will find it invaluable, as it will stand up under several days wear while your white set is being laundered.

PASSION PLAY A MARVELLOUS PRESENTATION

Great Drama of Christ's Crucifixion Acted Here Yesterday By Freiburg Players Reverence of Players Suited to Simplicity and Grandeur of Story; More Performances

Victorians had an opportunity yesterday evening of witnessing the first Canadian production of a great Passion Play, when Adolf Fassnacht and his Freiburg Players from Baden, Germany, presented the story of Christ's crucifixion and resurrection in the new Horse Show Pavilion at the Willows. The spectators can only marvel at the play, with its wonderful dramatic power, its magnificent scenes, its simplicity and grandeur. The slow, great progression of the story, to its grand climax on Golgotha, and the absolute reverence with which these German actors play their parts.

Playing parts is really an inapt phrase, for to the Freiburg villagers the Passion Play is a living reality. It was founded at a time when the doings of devils in the adjacent Black Forest were becoming so terrifying that the inhabitants of Freiburg felt their souls could only be saved by a great religious display. The dramatization of the life of Christ responded to a very definite need, and even over the space of 600 years the spirit in which the play was born has evidently not been forgotten by the Freiburg villagers. In the direct, forthright presentation, the rejection of controversial and ritualistic questions and the spirit of devotion and reverence in which the play is enacted, Mr. Fassnacht, who is director as well as the Christus portrayer, has achieved a triumph that could only have come through years of experience.

RESEMBLING PAINTINGS
Many of the scenes of the Passion Play are first made to resemble paintings, which often are exact copies of the works of various masters. They then take on life. Leading up to the scenes are introductions brought about through magnificent stage effects—such as dim light, clouds, shouting thunder and lightning. These introductions leave an impression of continuity and give a fine flow to the play. It is on transcendental scenes such as the Crucifixion and the Entombment that the fate of the play rests. Mr. Fassnacht and his company must achieve or fall on these, for they have a meaning for the average spectator that is beyond words. The slightest insincerity or irreverence would be felt at once. In yesterday evening's performance, such scenes were triumphant, and, in the presentation of great spiritual facts, were in the nature of a revelation. Especially so was the Entombment scene, when, after Christ has been laid in the tomb by the sorrowing women and the four soldiers of Pilate were sent to see he did not rise again. He suddenly burst forth and stood immobile. The curtain dropped, rose again, and an angel was heard announcing Christ's resurrection, with Mary Magdalene weeping in joy by the tomb-entrance. The play closed with the singing of the "Hallelujah Chorus."

THE STORY
The whole dialogue is spoken in German, and though this makes some of the intricacies of the action somewhat hard to understand, even the guttural tongue is something different for the spectators and has a beauty of its own. No greater tribute could be given to the actors than to say that many cases the meaning of the words is not necessary, so explicit and impressive is the acting. An English translation is supplied on a souvenir program.

The costumes, too, were wonderful. Hundreds of people took part in the play, many of them local talent, and the vast number of costumes of all descriptions was one of the sights to be seen. Three carloads of scenery were brought here. One of the most vital factors in the success of the production was the musical accompaniment under the direction of Ralph B. Van Courtright. A mixed choir of at least 200 voices was employed, and a small orchestra played the holy music.

The performance takes over two and a half hours. The matinee this afternoon will be followed by evening performances to-night, to-morrow and Saturday and another matinee Saturday. The evening performances commence at 8:15 o'clock and the afternoon at 2:30.

The argument of the Passion Play is similar to the Bible story. Following two tableaux, one, the Glorification of Adam and Eve from the Garden of Eden by an angel, the audience witnesses the Triumphal Entry, the Last Supper, the trial before Pilate, "Ecce Homo," the crucifixion and the entombment.

Jesus triumphantly enters Jerusalem and is acclaimed by the multitude. He goes to Bethany, leaving Him, because of His great popularity, the Priests and Scribes hold council as to how they may overpower Him. Jesus says farewell to His Mother and friends. In Bethany, with His disciples He returns to Jerusalem. He weeps over the sins of the city. He sends two disciples to prepare the Passover-lamb. Judas conceives the idea of betraying the Master.

THE LAST SUPPER
Judas comes into the Sanhedrin and bargains to deliver Jesus for thirty pieces of silver. The Pharisees conclude that Jesus must die. The Priests meet in the temple in the presence of Calaphas, the High Priest, arranging to ensnare Jesus in the Garden of Gethsemane. Jesus prays on Mount Olivet. He suffers the pangs of death, and an angel appears with the cup. The mob appears and encircles Jesus. Judas betrays the Master with a kiss. He is taken away. Taken before Calaphas, Jesus is condemned to death by the High Priest. The mob abuses Him. Judas appears before the Sanhedrin and undertakes to release Jesus, but is shunned by the Priests and Pharisees. Judas hurls the thirty pieces of silver into the council chamber and rushes away to be alone with his remorse.

THE TRIAL BEFORE PILATE
Brought before Pontius Pilate, the Roman Governor, Jesus is accused by the Priests, but Pilate declares Him innocent. The Priests demand that Jesus be put to death. Pilate seeks to shift the responsibility to King Herod of Judea. Brought before Herod, the King demands "a sign" of His power. Jesus stands mute and is derided by Herod and by the Priests. Herod sends Jesus back to Pilate, and the Priests demand that He be put to death. To appease them Pilate sentences Jesus to be scourged. The Priests stir up the mob and together they call for Him to be crucified. Judas goes out and hangs himself.

Pilate gives the mob a choice between Jesus and Barabbas. The mob calls, "Give us Barabbas. Crucify Jesus." Jesus is scourged, crowned with thorns, given a sceptre and mocked. Pilate causes the scourged and thorn-crowned Jesus to be placed before the mob. He says, "Behold the Man," and compares Jesus with Barabbas, the murderer. Again the mob demands the freedom of Barabbas and the crucifixion of Jesus. His firmness shaken by the insistence of the mob, Pilate washes his hands, frees Barabbas and condemns Jesus.

THE CRUCIFIXION
Laden with the cross Jesus begins the march to Golgotha. He meets his sorrowing Mother and Mary Magdalene, his household, Veronica wipes His face with her kerchief. The women weep over Him. At Golgotha Jesus is nailed to the Cross. He is lifted up and the mob scoffs at Him. He speaks His last words and dies. Longinus, the Roman Captain, braves the storm and earthquakes to place the side of Jesus with his lance. Jesus' life flows down from the cross by Josef of Arimathea, Nicodemus and Marcus, and placed in the lap of His Mother.

Jesus is in sorrowing procession to the tomb. Because He has said He will rise again, Pilate causes four soldiers to be placed to guard the tomb. The great stone of the tomb is rolled away and Jesus appears. The women visit the tomb. An angel announces that Christ is Risen.

KIWANIS CLUB STANDS WELL

No Deterioration in Movement, H. M. Diggon Tells International Gathering

District Governor Gives Feature Address at Port Angeles;
Victorians Give Programme

As far as his district was concerned there was no deterioration in the Kiwanis club movement, Harold M. Diggon, district governor of the Pacific North-west region, told a joint gathering of local, Port Angeles, Sequim and Port Townsend Kiwanians as well as Rotarians of the U.S. towns, in making a feature address in the international luncheon at Port Angeles yesterday.

Any decrease in membership he attributed to poor business conditions. He stressed the necessity of deeper thinking on the part of clubmen, saying that all things of value in this world had been contributed by thinkers, not by hustlers.

Regarding the district convention, to be held in Tacoma shortly, he informed the clubmen if they attended the function in the correct frame of mind they would secure ideas of great value to them. Citizenship would be one of the topics stressed at the gathering.

Mr. Diggon stated.
VALUE OF MINGLING
At some length he spoke of the value of interclub gatherings, such as the convention would provide. Such events, as well as meetings such as they held yesterday in Port Angeles, were of great worth in promoting international friendship. In this respect the visit of the U.S.S. Idaho to Victoria during the Diamond Jubilee Celebrations had been greatly appreciated.

Kenneth Ferguson thanked the Port Angeles club for its hospitality and paid tribute to the members who had assisted in the programme.

Thomas Kelway and Fred Wright, both of Victoria, contributed vocal solos during the function. The former also led the community singing.

In the afternoon the members of the various clubs mingled in golf matches, returning to Victoria yesterday evening.

J. BARRYMORE IN "SVENGALI" AT CAPITOL

Story Is From the Gifted Pen
of George Du Maurier

Blessed with an ability to sketch his characters in pen and ink as well as in word pictures, George Du Maurier, author of "Trilby," gave to the world a doubly clear understanding of that evil personality, "Svengali," now showing at the Capitol Theatre, when his novel was first published, by illustrating it with his own drawings. In all the stage revivals of the great drama, "Svengali" has been made to look as much like these drawings as possible. Before that story was made into a talking picture for Warner Brothers, with John Barrymore in the sinister role, the old prints in the early American editions were studied again and every detail prior to the production.

Barrymore, himself an artist of no mean ability, studied both text and pictures to establish not only his own appearance as "Svengali" but also to make all the other characters comply with the novelist's conception. Several weeks were consumed in casting and with wig makers and costumers, to insure exact reproductions of the people who move through this weird and fascinating story.
